Irate citizens set protest

City is in uproar over tax boosts

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

"The whole city is in an uproar!" That's the way one man described the situation in Romulus over the reassessment of property values and notification of the owners.

The notices were sent out the first of March and more than 200 residents packed City Council chambers last week to protest what they called unreasonable tax hikes.

Council members listened for three hours as a total of 46 residents, one-fourth of the audience, rose to their feet and angrily denounced the increase in their taxes.

So incensed are some of the local residents that a group of Romulus citizens — calling themselves "Citizens For Tax Reform" — has called a meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Romulus VFW Hall, on Huron River Dr., across the street from Kelsey-Hayes plant.

Heading the citizens' group is Mel Morgan and Ed Rush, two Romulus businessmen who are thoroughly disgusted with the latest tax bills they've received.

"We've already received 50 phone calls from people confirming they will be there Thursday night," Morgan told the Roman. "This is strictly a citizen's meeting and we will have two attorneys available to help any residents who feel they are being taxed unjustly," he said.

Morgan added that the new group's attorneys would try to get a temporary injunction against the city so it cannot levy the new taxes.

The "uproar" all came about because of the tax assessment conducted last year by the city in obedience to the city charter which says the city must reassess all property at least every eight years.

Adding to the dispute is the fact that the City of Romulus (City Council) voted to have Wayne County assessors do the reassessment. Since the city pays taxes to Wayne County, many Romulus residents contend that there is a conflict of interest.

Many irate citizens voiced that opinion at last week's council meeting, which had a standing-room crowd. Agreeing with that point of view is Councilman Jimmie C. Raspberry, who was the lone dissenter on the last year's council to vote against having Wayne County assess the land.

"Why, that's like putting the fox in the chicken coop!" exclaimed the colorful veteran councilman at the packed meeting.

Although many went home unhappy from the council meeting, their large number provoked Mayor William M. Oakley and the City Council to action.

Oakley recommended to the council that the City of Romulus request outside legal expertise to investigate the tax reassessment.

Councilwoman Beverly McNally moved to concur with the mayor's request, was supported and the motion passed.

Raspberry added an amendment to the motion which stated that a public statement be put in the local newspaper when the answers have been received and to hold a public hearing before taxes are raised.

Oakley received a letter dated March 10 from Edward W. Kane, secretary to the State Tax Commission, in response to his quest for information about the recent reassessment.

The letter stated: "The governing body of the city, namely, the mayor and the common council, does not have any authority to accept or reject the assessment roll."

"The assessor of the city is the official responsible for preparing the assessment roll, which is then delivered to the board of review."

"The Board of Review is confined to considering each property on an individual basis and may not apply an across-the-board revision in either direction, up or down."

One of the main concerns of residents at last week's meeting was the fact their homes were reassessed without the appraiser going inside the house. Others said their taxes had doubled, while still others complained the reassessment did not seem to be equitable in the same areas.

Mayor Oakley advised all Romulus property owners, who are still dissatisfied after conferring with city assessor Dave Krause, should make an appointment with the board of review by calling city hall at 941-0666, ext. 21.

For a good cause

A sustained membership enrollment drive to raise $8,600 for the Huron District of the Boy Scouts of America was kicked off by (left to right) Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley; Tom Robinson, district executive for the Huron District, BSA; and Leo Kolata, vice president and manager of the Manufacturers National Bank of Romulus. The $8,600 will be solicited from individuals and businesses in the Huron District — Romulus, Belleville and Taylor and townships of Huron, Van Buren, Sumpter and Brownstown. The sum represents part of the $2½ million budget for the 16 districts which comprise the Metropolitan region for the BSA. The scouts also receive funds in varying amounts from other sources — 46 percent from United Fund, 16 percent from Scout earnings, eight percent from various foundations, and 10 percent from government grants.

Schools "saved" by Governor

4 New trustees take seats

The Romulus School Board was returned to its full seven members Monday morning with the announcement that Gov. William Milliken had appointed four residents to replace the four trustees recalled in the March 4 election.

Named by the governor to fill the four seats are Mrs. Sandra Langley, Richard Campbell, Mrs. Lynne Slaughter and Mrs. Sharron Cahill. They will serve until the next school election in June.

The new appointees replace Gerald Budd, Gloria Chandler, Gordon Silvey and Ron Christensen, who were all overwhelmingly ousted in the March 4 recall election by a count of about 2½-1.

"We were notified about 11:40 a.m. today," School Supt. James Garfield said Monday. "I'm very pleased that the governor took such a short time to give us a full board again."

Garfield also noted that the school board's attorneys said the three members remaining on the board after the recall could have conducted routine business.

He also said that the attorneys reported that Milliken had to appoint trustees to fill all four vacancies. It had been conjectured whether Milliken would appoint one trustee, making a quorum of four members, and then having that body appoint the other three. But school board attorneys, moving on verbal word from the State Dept. of Education and the state attorney general's office, awaited the four to be appointed by the governor.

In relating his appreciation for the governor's quick action in replacing the decimated school board, Garfield added, "We would just be operating without being able to move the district ahead."

Garfield is hopeful the school board will restore several programs to the school curriculum before very much more time passes.

The four new school board trustees are:

Mrs. Sandra Langley, 34, 15798 Brandt, a nine-year resident of the city.

Richard Campbell, 62, 37812 Castled, a 16-year resident of Romulus.

Mrs. Lynne Slaughter, 32, 30510 Dorset, who has lived in the city eight years.

Mrs. Sharron Cahill, 34, 34863 Julie, an 11-year resident of Romulus.

These four will serve on the school board until the school election in June. The deadline is April 10 for residents to file petitions to run for vacant seats on the school board in the June election.

The four new appointees were expected to be sworn in at last Monday night's meeting.

Area residents cut back

Power blackouts are near

It has been more than three months since coal was hauled out of unionized mines in the United States, and the pinch of the United Mine Workers strike is beginning to be felt throughout the Midwest.

With coal supplies dwindling, utility companies have asked their customers to dial down and cut their use of energy. That conservation program and the use of alternative, more expensive fuels has delayed what appears to be inevitable — power blackouts.

Coal supplies are decreasing slowly, and Western Wayne County residents are preparing for what appears to be staggered blackouts.

ANP Staff Writers Jim Bradley, Durene Butler, Bob Ameen, Maureen Camps and Tom Mooradian have teamed up in this story to find out what some Western Wayne County residents are doing to save energy and get ready for those blackouts.

The Schumachers of Westland are conserving energy right now, as well as preparing for possible power blackouts.

According to Mrs. Jeanette Schumacher, the family for the past couple of years has been energy conscious — dialing the heat down, turning off lights and observing other obvious energy saving techniques.

She added that one energy saving tip is to use electrical appliances more wisely and to better capacity. For instance, if possible food should be prepared in an electric fry-pan or skillet rather than on the stove, since the fry pan uses less energy.

It is a fallacy, she added, that it takes more energy to turn a light off, then turn it back on a short time later, than to leave it on. If you're going to be out of that room for an hour, turn the light off.

Sun power is extremely important, she added. Her family opens the curtains when the sun is shining in and the rays do a remarkable job of heating the room. Naturally, when the sun goes down, the curtains are closed again, but the heat is retained.

The family is keeping a good supply of candles on hand, as well as firewood, for the blackouts. The Schumachers also are considering the possibility of having a "camp out" in the family room, in front of the fireplace, if power outages become the rule. Other rooms can be shut up and sleeping bags distributed around the one room where heat is concentrated. The family also has a supply of battery-operated clocks and flashlights.

Wilson, Bennie Rhodes, Leo Kalota, Doug Baum, Tom Ryan, Larry Hill, Denver Nelson, Morn Stein, Warren Smith, and John Brimble.

Also discussed at the meeting were the chamber by-laws, which include provisions for both active and honorary members. Members will study the by-laws and vote on them at a later date.

Dr. Carpenter has issued an invitation to all Romulus business and professional men who are interested in joining the new organization.

Founders of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce are hopeful it will help in attracting new business to the area and encourage established ones to expand. The chamber's solicitation control policy and procedure will help protect businesses from fraudulent charities and services.

Another valuable service performed by the chamber will be in acting as Romulus, Better Business Bureau, where in it can act as a communication vehicle between business and consumer to resolve problems without resorting to government interference.

Dr. Carpenter said the new chamber will attempt to provide the following services to its members and to the community:

1) Organize meetings and seminars to provide a medium to exchange views and information on individual operating problems;

2) Encourage improvement of transportation systems and public parking to provide easy access for shoppers and employees to all sections of the area;

3) Assistance to members in dealing with area governments on such matters as governmental services, rules and regulations, licenses and permits, and local ordinances;

4) Enable members to have access to comprehensive health insurance at group rates;

5) Work to keep the retail and service dollar in the Romulus;

6) Provide an on-going forum for frank exchanges of views between local businessmen and their political representatives;

7) Speak for the Romulus area businesses to assure activities of government at all levels do not interfere unnecessarily with the economic environment of the business community;

8) Serve as the front door to the Romulus area, representing business to the newcomers;

9) Publish an annual investors' roster and buyer's guide along with other up-to-date information helpful to business;

10) Help the visitors and convention bureau to bring a high velocity visitor and convention dollars to the Romulus area.

What Doctors of Chiropractic do, makes sense. They use their hands and a variety of practiced techniques to relieve the pressures that twisted vertebrae put on spinal nerves. The thought is, if you fix the spinal cord so it's not pinched . . . messages from the brain will flow unobstructed. When that happens, the brain communicates better with other parts of the body so every piece and part receives the messages they need to properly function. The result is improved health.

day, and has opted for cool drying rather than hot drying of the dishes. They have also bought fuel for the ir camp stove and lantern in preparation for power blackouts.

Romulus residents are not quite sure how any proposed blackouts may affect them, but they are ready for the challenge.

Henry and Violet Pawlowski of McBride Street, a couple in their late 50s, have quite a few ideas on how to handle the impending situation.

"We're trying to be very careful with keeping our lights turned down as much as possible and washing a full load of clothes each time," said Mrs. Pawlowski, who works at Micro-Measurement Co. in Romulus.

"I don't think it would bother me, if the lights were turned out. In fact, we had a little touch of that in the recent blizzard when the power went out.

"I would want my transistor radio, though, and I have a wind-up clock," she added.

Mrs. Pawlowski has lived in Romulus 50 years and feels that the women in each family have the most to be concerned about because they do the cooking and many other household chores.

Mrs. Veeta Webb, a young Romulus wife, says people will have to wait and see what happens.

A 25-year-resident of the city, she said: "It's according to how many blackouts we have. My friends ask me, 'What will we do?' but we'll just have to see if the blackouts really take place."

Meanwhile, two prominent city businesses already have taken measures to cope with energy cutbacks. Bilmar's Market on Goddard Road has turned off half its lights. Lynn, the daughter of the owner, Olin William Simonds, said: "The heat is turned way down at night and kept at a minimum during the day."

"We'll be in a desperate situation, if we have two-hour blackouts.

"If electric power was turned off and then on again, it will be a major problem for us with all the power we use. She added that refrigeration and cash registers are on electric power. The result of blackouts "would force us to close down" during then.

At nearby Romulus Hardware, owner Tony Kopas already has cut way back.

"I cut several banks of lights when we were first asked to," he said. "Our temperature is kept down to 64 maximum during the day and down to 55 each night. The first couple of hours it's a little chilly each day, but we're glad to be doing our part to help."

Kopas said his biggest sellers at the hardware store are batteries and flashlights.

"We also sell a lot of oil lamps, kerosene lamps and old-fashion candles. In fact, we're buying about 200 candles a week and selling out of them."

The demands of striking coal miners are not just making the people who live and work in Inkster more energy conscious, but also a little more philosophical.

Approaching the proposed inconvenience of rotating blackouts from a philosophical standpoint, David Allen said there are a lot of ways to cut down on energy usage without first "attacking" the individual consumer.

Allen, a Westland resident who owns a grocery store in Inkster, explained that since the energy crunch was announced several years ago, it has been the "poor little man" who was accused of being wasteful.

According to Allen, energy conservationists have zeroed-in on the wrong target. He feels that many businesses such as mall stores, movie theaters, hotels and restaurants "use enough energy in a week to take care of the electricity demands of a small community like Inkster for nearly a month."

The store owner admitted that since Nixon's administration, the thermostat in the building has been dialed down to 65 degrees during the winter months and not allowed lower than 70 degrees in the summer.

Allen added that at home, his lights only burn for about three hours each night, but he has been prepared with candles since the blackout in New York City 10 years ago.

Also prepared with candles is Mary McClelland.

Although they hang on the walls for decoration, the Inkster resident doesn't feel that she will have to take them down to find her way around the house.

She said previous threats of fuel shortages proved to be "over exaggerated" and therefore encourage skepticism in the present warning.

Still, scheduled to have a baby at any time, the mother-to-be is concerned with the health and care of her new born should the warnings come true.

For Samuel M. Williams, the barometer for energy uses usage in his house is not whether he believes the warnings are true or not.

Williams said he and his family have been energy conscious since the first threats of rotating blackouts.

He explained that dialing down at night and turning off unnecessary lights has prepared his family for the burden of additional inconvenience.

One of the first cities to approach Edison to discuss energy conservation, the City of Wayne has taken several key steps to save energy, according to Patrick Cullen, city manager.

"There is increased attention to the amount of light, and heat used in the municipal buildings, including the city hall, police department, fire department and the community center," Cullen noted.

"And there are tags on the light switches that remind people 'to turn off lights when not in use', Cullen added.

Cullen pointed out that the city's utility bill is a $365,000, however, the bulk of the money ($208,000) goes for street lighting.

And about $118,000 is allotted for the recreation center and its ice facility, which includes making and maintaining ice for the arena.

Cullen said that the city used 530,000 watts for street lighting, but the administration has met with Edison officials to reduce the output by 120,000 watts.

"We hope by turning out a proportion of the street lights we will be doing our share in helping to conserve energy," Cullen said.

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce has asked its members to turn down display and individual lights, according to Connie Shotwell, president of the group.

"Mainly, we have been leaving it (energy conservation) up to the individual members," said Mrs. Shotwell. "However, we have asked all members to curtail their use of electricity and other forms of energy whenever or wherever it is possible, if, of course, it doesn't affect security."

Miss Shotwell, who is an employee of the National Bank of Detroit, pointed out that the NBD has taken steps to save energy by lowering thermostats, cutting down on electricity, turning off all exterior signs and exterior lights, except those that are pertinent to security.

Postmaster William Stottlemeyer has been busy re-arranging the department in order to conserve electrical energy.

"We have re-arranged clerk and carrier cases down on about a quarter of the lighting at the post office," Stottlemeyer said. "We also have cut out some of the lights in the parking area, but we have maintained enough lighting for safety reasons."

How different people in Canton Township react to the call by our nation's leaders to cut back on energy wherever and whenever possible illustrates the diversity of human nature.

For example, Mrs. Linda LaBell, a housewife, and Alfred Lobbestael, a farmer, both indicated they would do everything in their power to conserve on energy. Sam Gill, a dairy farmer, took the opposite tack, saying there was almost nothing he and his brother could do in their farming and home activities to save on that valuable commodity.

"We turn our gas heat down to 65 degrees during the day and down to 62 at night," Mrs. LaBell remarked. "Our children lie down in their sleeping bags at night in front of the television and also sleep in their bags upstairs."

What has proved to be a boon to saving on the family's heat bills, she said, is a blower attached to the fireplace and an aluminum shield which reflects the heat away from the fireplace.

In addition, Mrs. LaBell explained, and adjustment on most furnace blowers permits the blower to keep blowing after the furnace goes off. This enables heat still stored in the furnace to be carried through ducts to various rooms in the house. Otherwise, the heat stays in the furnace and is wasted.

"With all of these saving measures, our heat bill is lower than usual and we can actually see the savings," she said.

Other energy-saving efforts practiced by the LaBell family include wearing sweaters day and night in the house and caulking around the edge of all windows to keep in heat and keep out the cold air.

In the area of transportation, their large family car which gets about 12 miles to the gallon, will soon be usurped by a small foreign car which has been temporarily out of running order.

"We're trying to get it repaired. When we do, my husband will drive it to work and that will cut our gasoline bill down considerably," she affirmed.

Farmer Lobbestael said: "I always save energy in every way that I can because energy costs money."

Whenever possible, he uses his diesel tractor instead of his gasoline-driven one because it uses about half as much fuel.

When lights on his farm are not in use, they are turned off, he said. The home thermostat is dialed as far down as possible, and still be comfortable, during the day. At night, when the family retires, it is turned down even further; he added.

"Next winter I plan to put another chimney on the house so I can burn junk wood which accumulates on the farm. I also plan to put in more insulation in the house," Lobbestael said.

Commenting on the national energy-saving crusade, the farmer said everyone should make an effort to save on our stores of different fuels.

"There is a finite amount of energy stored in the bowels of the earth. We should make it last as long as possible. Someday, we may have a better way of tapping sources of energy," he noted.

Quite a different point of view was expounded by Gill, who operates a dairy farm with his brother, Don.

"There's not much we can really do. We try to conserve on energy because it is costly, but there's really not much we can do."

He said large amounts of electricity are needed to operate equipment to "milk the cows and cool the milk."

"We can provide our own standby electrical power, but the fuel needed to run the tractor which powers the unit costs money, too," he said.

Although Gill admitted small savings in energy could be made, he declared it was impossible to effect savings of 25-50 percent as advocated by our elected leaders.

Asked if he tried to save on lighting around his dairy farm, Gill said: "We do cut out the use of lights, but then we only use them when necessary anyway, so that is nothing different for us."

Folks in the Belleville area also appear to be ready for any energy cutbacks and already have taken steps to cut heat and lights.

John and Janet Oliver of Haggerty, Van Buren Township, say they're ready to cope with any situation that arises.

"I always keep a good supply of necessities on hand, such as candles, warm clothing, long underwear, sweaters and woolen clothing," said Mrs. Oliver.

The Olivers, who have been married 15 years, got a taste of life without electricity during the blizzard in January when their power was shut off for about seven hours.

"We'll just have to adjust, and I think we'll be able to do that alright," she said. Mrs. Oliver said she also felt her three daughters would fare okay, if a blackout came.

"The girls, Jenna, who was 14 yesterday, Ann, 12, and Karin, 8, will have to do without television and their record player. But they are avid readers and would be ready to read by candlelight, I'm sure," she said.

Lewis Robson of Savage Road, has lived in the Belleville area 65 years and thinks people have been too extravagant with energy.

"People have wasted a lot more than they needed," Robson said, "and we're going to have to be more practical in our use of energy."

Robson said he installed a new furnace last year and utilizes hot water radiant heat. "We cut the lights way down and have had smaller electric bills. However, we keep our temperature at 66 degrees all the time because, if we put it lower, it would take a lot more energy to bring it back up to that level."

Robson was philosophical about the impending energy cutbacks. "I think it might do us good to have to do without some of the luxuries we've been taking advantage of," he explained.

Arthur and Verdys Shephard of Elwell Road have "looked up" their Coleman heater and lantern and put it in the utility room for ready use.

"We've turned off all unnecessary lights and cut every corner we can," said Mrs. Shephard, who is a cook at Elwell Elementary School.

"We turn our heat down to 65 degrees at night and only up to 68 during the day. Today, the sun is warm and the temperature is nice, but I shudder to think what it'll do if the coal strike continues very long."

She added that she and her husband, who is retired, combine their shopping errands and do as much buying on each trip as they can.

Meanwhile, churches are doing their part to cut energy use and save money at the same time.

A typical example is St. Anthony's Church and School in Belleville. At the church, the heat is cut down all week long and turned up for Sunday services.

At St. Anthony's School, which has grades 1 through 8, the heat is dialed down at night and back up each morning.

Everybody contacted in the Belleville area said they were willing to do everything they could to conserve energy.

"It not only shows we're doing our part, it also helps the pocketbook with excessive savings," said a practical-minded person.

For '78 Michigan Week

All systems are 'go'

All systems are now "go" for a bigger and better Romulus celebration of Michigan Week this year, as a result of At. Gen. Frank Kelley's ruling that city expenditures for Mayor's Exchange Day are legitimate government expenses.

A question arose several weeks ago during a preliminary report by state auditors, whether several 1977 Michigan Week expenditures were valid.

The auditors were called in last year by former city treasurer John Lewkowicz to investigate his charges of alleged spending improprieties during the Stewart administration.

State auditor A. G. Rochon, who gave the report before the City Council on Feb. 28, admitted this way a "grey" area, and suggested the city contact the Attorney General's Office for a legal determination.

The answer came back last week, stating that there were no "direct prohibitions in the constitution or statutes against such expenditures... in observance of Mayor Exchange Day during Michigan Week."

So now preparations are under way to fill the annual weeklong event with interesting and exciting things to do for all Romulus residents.

Tentative plans call for the eight-day celebration to begin with "Community Pride Day" May 20, hosted again this year by Romulus senior citizens.

May 21 is "Heritage Day" and plans are under way for the mayor to officially dedicate a local historical site for inclusion to the State Register, and then adjourn to lead a team of city officials in a softball game against all challengers. A city-wide picnic will follow, to which all residents are invited.

On May 22 Mayor William M. Oakley will exchange places for a day with another Michigan mayor, whose name will be drawn in Lansing March 22, during the annual Michigan Municipal League's Legislative conference.

May 23 marks "World Trade Day", highlighted by tours of the airport for all interested Romulus residents.

May 24 is designated as "Livelihood Day", sponsored this year by the newly-formed Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber organizers plan a huge city-wide civic luncheon for all residents, both private and corporate, featuring a well-known guest speaker.

Thursday of Michigan Week is "Education Day", with all elementary and secondary schools participating in a wide variety of educational projects, topped-off by the "takeover" of City Hall for a half-day by high school government students.

The week draws to a finish with "Hospitality Day" on May 26, organized by "We the People", a non-partisan civic group. The finale on Saturday is reserved for Romulus youth (and their parents), sponsored again this year by the City Recreation Department.

The focal point and site of most of the "Days" will be the Civic Center Complex, at 1111 Wayne Road.

Every Romulus resident who would like to share some time and energy to make this year's celebration successful, should call Jay Young, public information officer at 941-0666, ext. 20, for information on how they can help.

"I hope many citizens will become involved in Michigan Week because such activities foster a genuine feeling of community pride and friendship," Mayor Oakley said.

He emphasized the need for citizen participation in planning for the festivities, since it is primarily for their benefit.

Laffs winner

Sue Pittenger of Wayne brought along her young child to help cart off the 100 state lottery tickets she won in the fifth week of Associated Newspapers Lottery Laffs Contest. Presenting Mrs. Pittenger with her hopefully lucky tickets was ANP's Enterprise-Roman Suburban Living Editor Lee Smith. Mrs. Pittenger's winning entry—a caption for a sketch of a secretary talking to a gentleman with a whip—was: "Sir! I'm sorry...That's not what we mean by Whip Inflation!"—ANP photo.

It's last chance for tour

This is the last week Western Wayne County residents will have to sign up for an early look at the spring weather to come.

That's the word from Associated Newspaper's tour director Gene Wertz about the April 7-9 visit to Washington D.C. This will be the last week residents will be able to sign up for the 26th annual Cherry Blossom Tour.

Offered through Associated Newspapers Inc., the annual trip will leave Detroit Metropolitan Airport on April 7 and return from the East coast on April 9.

The cost of the all-expense paid tour is $230 per person, double occupancy. The cost includes air fare, hotel accommodations, meals, ground transportation, admissions, luggage handling and gratuities.

The trip's itinerary includes visits to such famous and historic sites as the Capitol Building, White House, Smithsonian Institute, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials and more.

Those interested in joining the tour can contact Gene Wertz at 729-4000 for further information.

Reservations are limited and will be taken on a first come-first serve basis.

Mrs. Skiff: Still going strong at 95

Dora Skiff turned 95 last week and celebrated the occasion with a personal visit by Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley.

Mrs. Skiff, who lives in a tiny house at 36822 Perry, was honored last year during Michigan Week as one of the oldest residents of the city.

Today, she retains the same good humor, alertness and zest for life she exhibited when contacted last year.

The mayor surprised Mrs. Skiff with a congratulatory letter and birthday cake, which she immediately declared must be saved to share with her neighbor who delivers a prepared meal to her once a day.

Mrs. Skiff, who has 17 grandchildren, fervently maintains her independence, although she is fast losing her eyesight and can move about only with the aid of a walker.

Her prized possession is a black-and-white television set, which she listens to constantly. Her favorite program is the evening news, although she often is bothered by the violence she hears reported.

When queried by Mayor Oakley as to the secret of her longevity, she declared: "Don't drink, don't smoke, eat good vittles and drink a glass of milk every night before going to bed."

Mrs. Skiff, who hasn't been out-of-doors since Christmas, vowed to break that pattern on May 20, during Community Pride Day, to visit with other Romulus senior citizens.

She thanked the mayor for his visit, explaining she received few visitors now.

"Most of my friends are gone now," she said, "so I really appreciate it when someone stops by."

The mayor left with a firm promise from Mrs. Skiff to see her again during this year's Michigan Week celebration.

4-H open house is set

Romulus Civic League, in cooperation with Wayne County 4-H Youth Program, is hosting an Open House at 6 p.m. Friday at 1495 Wahrman Rd., Romulus.

Purpose of the open house is to give the community an opportunity to learn more about 4-H and 4-H programs. The Wayne County 4-H Youth Program is designed to help young people become effective citizens and to help them achieve their full potential.

The open house will feature a slide presentation, modern dance demonstration, youth meal preparation, and various performing and cultural arts exhibits.

In related news, Saint City Church of God in Christ, 7335 Washington St., Romulus, is sponsoring Romulus Sub-North 4-H Clubs on Monday evenings from 7-8 p.m. for youths 8-18 years and there is no charge.

Two 4-H clubs have already been established and they are to begin Monday, March 20. These clubs are African Cultural Heritage and Photography.

More clubs are planned for the future. There is a need for volunteer leaders to conduct the clubs. Adults and teen-agers are needed to lead.

Ivonne Bryant (941-1392) may be contacted for more information. Diane Courtney works with her in the program.

Steelhead streams recognized in U.S.

Michigan's steelhead streams have gained national recognition and currently provide some of the finest spring fishing available, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"It's common to see cars and motor homes from every part of the country parked alongside the state's top steelhead rivers," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager. "Steelheading in Michigan has become so popular that streams like the St. Joseph, Little Manistee, Au Sable, Two Hearted and others now view with long-famous West Coast rivers for angler interest," Ratke said.

Fishermen planning trips during the March-to-June season can expect another near-record steelhead run this year, resulting from excellent natural reproduction and plantings by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

More than two million fish, averaging 10 lbs., are expected to make spawning runs in rivers this spring.

The current Michigan steelhead record of 26 lbs.-8ozs. was set in 1975 and could be broken this spring. Auto Club states that larger steelhead probably have been caught, mistaken for salmon and eaten. A steelhead can be identified by its all-white mouth, spotted tail, pink gill plates and side stripes.

Anglers planning to make the most of the steelhead season can fish southwest Michigan in mid-March and move north, fishing streams along the Lake Michigan coast until mid-April.

Along Lake Huron, outstanding steelheading awaits anglers from mid-April through early May. From mid-April to late May, Upper Peninsula streams are best. Auto Club suggests that anglers concentrate on the North Channel of the St. Clair River in southeast Michigan in June.

While most anglers swear by spawn fished either with a sinker or bobber as the most productive steelhead bait, others use artificial spawn, or even chunks of colored sponge scented with anise oil or garlic. Fly fishing for steelhead with ultra lightweight tackle and extra-long rods is a growing Michigan trend.

Auto Club suggests that anglers learn all regulations applying to the rivers listed in its steelhead river guide before wetting a line. Sections of some rivers are open for fly fishing only and other parts open with general trout season April 29.

The DNR warning issued last spring that Lake Michigan steelhead may contain excessive amounts of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) still applies. Anglers should eat no more than a half pound of steelhead per week. Women of childbearing age should not eat any fish containing high PCB levels.

Further information on fishing rules and PCB dangers can be found in the DNR's 1978 Michigan Fishing Guide.

Editorial opinions

Tax revolt heralds 'Summer of discontent'

The summer of taxpayer discontent is upon us, and if voters in the more than 26 states that are currently considering proposals dealing with taxes and spending approve those issues, a new day could be dawning in the good old U.S. of A.

Following the latest round of property tax increases, the citizens of our country seem to be saying that they have had just about enough of big government and the inherent big taxes that are necessary to feed its insatiable appetite.

The present tax reform proposals being considered range from a state spending limit that is tied to the state personal income levels, to a measure that the voters in California will be asked to vote on in that state's June primary, that would drastically reduce the present property taxes by about 60 percent.

The common thread that appears to bond the supporters of tax reform together is the feeling that the state has lost touch with its taxpayers and spending is now out of control.

In Michigan, a group calling itself Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation, is currently circulating petitions throughout the state. The group's goal is to collect the necessary 266,000 signatures by June 15 to get a proposal on the ballot that would link tax increases to the gross personal income in the state.

A similar issue was rejected by Michigan's Voters in 1976, following the concerted effort by school officials to defeat it. They mistakenly felt that such a measure would hurt the state's school systems, while providing few benefits.

But, of all the current proposals that are being considered, the California tax reform measure would provide the largest property tax reduction.

In the land of freeways and free thinking, the tax burden placed on residents has been unequaled anywhere in the country.

Homes selling for $30,000, carry with them an annual property tax bill of nearly $1,200, as compared with the $700 that would be currently assessed in the average Michigan community. And, with inflation raising property values by almost one percent a month in California, the tax burdens placed on residents there have forced many to move from their homes and attempt to find lower cost facilities.

In California, as in Michigan in 1976, educators are claiming that if voters approve the tax reform issue, it would mean the end to the state's school systems.

While proponents of the new tax law claim that those cries are just a smokescreen to hide the educators' real fear of losing their high salaries and plush offices, we feel that there is some justification for the claims.

Along with the California tax revolt, there has been a growing movement within Michigan toward tax reform. Efforts are now under way by the leaders of the California revolt, to spread their message through the country.

According to Howard Jarvis, the leader of the taxpayers revolt in California, following the June election and the adoption by the voters of his tax reform law, he and his group will then expand their efforts into other states where their help may be requested or needed.

We at Associated Newspapers feel that anyone, including Howard Jarvis, who may be able to get our lawmakers' attention, is welcome in Michigan.

We, like Howard Jarvis, feel that bigger and bigger government is not the answer to Michigan's problems, nor are higher and higher property taxes the answer.

We as usual, welcome your comments and suggestions on this subject.

'Involved citizen' nominations sought

We, like most organizations and interested citizens, are often guilty of overlooking the positive while in 'hot pursuit' of the negative.

In an effort toward correcting this understandable, but poor characteristic of the human race, Associated Newspapers would like to reserve a portion of this page for recognizing the outstanding contributions of people within our circulation areas.

In the coming weeks we hope to provide readers with a look at the accomplishments of their neighbors and friends. The person that we select for recognition, need not be an elected official or business leader. In our daily lives we often encounter people who have provided their communities with a part of themselves on a regular basis without any thought of self reward. Those are the people that Associated would salute for community involvement.

We invite our readers to send us their nominations for Involved Citizen of the Month.

It is not often that we find someone who is willing to work for nothing more than a pat on the back. We should be able to at least supply the pat.

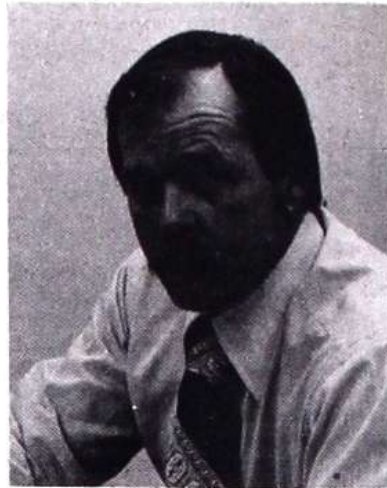

Associated Newspapers is committed to community involvement. We believe there is no other way to insure that the cities and townships that we may call home, will survive.

Working together we can build a better community.

From Romulus City Hall

Mayor responds to more tax questions

WILLIAM M. OAKLEY
Mayor, City of Romulus

As I explained last week, the current reassessment process was set in motion eight years ago, by a mandate of the City Charter.

Neither this administration nor the present City Council can do anything to alter that fact. We are obligated by law to uphold this charter provision and support the city assessor, whose job requires him to explain the reassessments, based on existing State laws and regulations.

However, after receiving your reassessment, you believe that you couldn't presently sell your home for twice its assessed valuation, you may have a case for appeal.

First check your records at the assessor's office, to ensure your property is accurately described. There may be inequities in their worksheets.

However, if the description is correct, then ask for an explanation of the assessment based on the assessor's records and documentation of sales.

If this explanation proves unsatisfactory, make an appointment to appear before the Board of Review, meeting now through the end of the month.

If you are not satisfied with their finding, within 30 days, you can file an appeal with the State Tax Tribunal.

Those are some the steps you can take as an individual.

I have personally contacted each member of the Romulus Board of Review and have urged them to give every consideration, under the law, to Romulus appellants.

I am sending a letter to all Romulus residents explaining the appeal procedures and urging all citizens to take advantage of the appellate process.

I have appointed a study commission to investigate the reassessment process and report back to me with recommendations to help alleviate the increased tax burden that may be placed on many Romulus residents this year.

I have been in contact with "Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation," a state-wide group seeking petition signatures to place an amendment on the summer ballot to limit the State's taxation. Petitions will be available at City Hall, if you are interested. The group needs to collect 266,000 signatures by June 15.

I have contacted the State Tax Commission to determine if there is any legal avenue I can pursue to formally protest the amount the State taxes it residents and the method it employs in conducting municipal reassessments.

This year's assessment has graphically illustrated the urgent need for tax reform on a local, state-wide and federal basis.

I firmly believe that the era of "Big Brother" is fast approaching and will soon be upon us, unless we take steps now to put a stop to rampant government growth and control over our lives. We are witnessing a taxpayer's revolt that is spreading across the nation like wildfire, with some 27 states currently considering proposals limiting taxes and spending on the state level.

The residents of the State of California will soon vote on a radical proposal to limit property taxes to 1 percent of market value, and by all estimates it is likely to pass overwhelmingly.

I believe that property taxes are not a fair and equitable way to finance governments and schools. However, I also realize that a drastic cut in property taxes will necessitate finding other sources of revenue, if the level of services Americans have come to expect are maintained.

This is a complex issue and will not be solved easily. But, the time has come to stand and be counted. I urge all concerned citizens to support the petition drive currently underway, if you feel we need a different method of financing government operations.

Romulus residents interested in pursuing state-wide tax reform, should consider signing a petition being circulated by Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation.

How to get your story in the paper

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

How does one go about getting a news item published in the paper? A common question asked by hundreds of individuals and groups throughout the community.

Because the question has been asked so frequently in the past, and will probably be asked again in the future, Associated Newspapers is devoting this space to a detailed explanation of how to improve the chances that your story will make the pages of your newspaper.

A community group or civic organization should suggest that their group give one person the responsibility of dealing with the paper. That person should come into the office and discuss with the news editor, the paper's deadline for news items in your community, the type of photographs suitable for inclusion in the paper, and the identifying information for photographs.

In addition, the person delegated the responsibility for working with the paper should make an attempt to gain an understanding of procedures employed by the newspaper.

An individual who wishes to place an item in the paper should also contact the news editor for deadlines and the proper procedures for preparing news material and photos for submission.

In general, any item submitted to your paper will have a better chance of getting in if a few simple guidelines are followed.

Always type submitted material, if possible. It is time-consuming and costly for the newspaper to type material that is submitted in handwritten form. Further, some people write illegibly and it is almost impossible to read their information.

When typing information for the story, start the story in the middle of the first sheet of paper. By leaving the top half of the sheet blank, the editor has space to instruct the typesetters on how to set the story. The space at the top of the paper will also be used to instruct the composition department on what page the material will be printed.

Again, if material is typed, it should be triple spaced. This will allow the editor to correct spelling and grammatical errors. Single-spaced letters do not provide any space for those corrections.

If the material is submitted handwritten, it should also be triple-spaced on lined paper, and the material should be printed rather than written.

Handwritten stories that are submitted single spaced must always be typed by the editorial staff prior to printing. This additional effort will require more time by the paper, and consequently, the article may appear in the paper late.

Photographs which accompany any news item submitted to the paper should be black and white, no smaller than two inches square or larger than 8 by 10 inches. All photographs should have the name of the subjects printed on the back, and also the name of the person they are to be returned to.

Color photographs sometimes can be used, but may be rejected by the photo editor, if he believes they will not reproduce properly.

If a photograph is necessary to properly support the news item sent in, a call well in advance of the activity should be made to request that a photographer be assigned.

While it is impossible for the paper to assign a photographer to all the requested events, we will make every effort to cover events of a broad general interest.

These few simple guidelines will considerably improve the chances of a submitted story making it into the paper.

While we are dedicated to serving the community, it only stands to reason that articles properly prepared will be handled the fastest, and there are times when we will have no one available for handling those articles that may require special treatment.

Never request that your news item be taken over the phone. This practice leads to errors and if the article is worth printing, it is worth printing correctly.

Clip this article from the paper and keep it handy for those times when you might wish to submit an article to the paper.

By following these guidelines, you will make our job easier and your article better.

We are standing by waiting to hear from you.

Working together, we can build a better community.

Postal service hit

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in regards to the mail service in our area.

I could understand no mail service when we had the snow and blizzard conditions, but when the mail is not delivered on days of regular service I believe this to be ridiculous.

When we do get mail service it is never until between 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock in the evening.

If it is getting to late then we don't get mail service at all until the next day.

If we can't depend on our mail service then what can we depend on.

I am one citizen that is getting pretty tired of looking forward to my mail delivery, only to find out it is not going to be delivered today.

Big sister is now

To the Editor:

Why worry about big brother having control of Belleville Lake? Big sister now controls the lake.

Don't forget, big brother was supervisor when Belleville Lake was closed to hunting, and little brother a former supervisor was one of his most ardent supporters. Big sister, now supervisor, was the most vehement supporter of the matron to close the lake to duck hunting.

All this took place without one resident of Van Buren Township in favor of closing the lake to hunting.

Many pro-hunters were there, myself included.

To quote the most recent former supervisor: "If you want to shoot ducks go to the zoo." The little brother former supervisor said: "One duck shot is one too many."

I am willing to donate $1000.00 for every dollar the above mentioned (people) have donated to conservation in the past year. Note: I said conservation not preservation.

Black-outs hit

To the Editor,

We earnestly hope that the coal strike is nearing settlement so that the problem of fuel conservation may be reviewed in a less dramatic atmosphere.

However, it is current conservation plans that concern us. We are informed of your plan to initiate black-outs in various sections of the community for two hours, after a ten minute advance warning.

It is the opinion of the Romulus Democratic Club that such a measure would inflict an extreme hardship on residents and businesses alike.

We believe any benefit would be offset by a tendency to increase power usage in an attempt to compensate for an anticipated black-out.

We suggest, as an alternate measure, that residential power not be disturbed, but that all shopping centers be closed on Sundays and schools be curtailed to four days.

It is our opinion that black-outs should be the last alternative implemented in this or any other energy conservation effort.

Frogs to be topic

"Salamanders and Frogs" will be the subject of discussion during a program to be held at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near Milford on March 25 at 9 a.m.

Salamanders and frogs can be observed during the spring season. For it is at this time that they congregate in ponds and lakes to begin their mating rituals. Different species of frogs and salamanders can be identified by their markings, but frogs can also be recognized by their unique calls. Some sound like quacking ducks, while others make sounds similar to peeping chicks. Through the use of taped calls and slides, Naturalist Steve Horn will show how to identify the frogs and salamanders of this area. Whether permitting, there will be an outdoor observation walk.

This 1½-hour free program is for families and individuals only. Advance registration is required.

Announcing Trust Services in Western Wayne County

Wayne Bank is pleased to announce that the experienced services of Ann Arbor Bank & Trust Company are now available to Western Wayne County through our offices. A representative of Ann Arbor Bank & Trust will be here regularly and at your convenience to meet with you, review your financial and estate planning, and answer all your questions.

This is an important opportunity for the residents of our area to benefit from the financial protection that a trust can offer. If all your assets—including your life insurance—total $60,000 or more, you should consider a trust.

Essentially, a trust is the professional management of assets by a person or institution for the benefit of someone else. A good definition, but just what does it mean for you?

Trust services can provide you and your family with financial security, offer you substantial tax savings, and help to protect your assets from changing economic conditions.

There are two basic types of trusts to consider: A "living trust" provides you with consistent, professional management of your assets during your life, and for your heirs after your death. A "living trust" can be especially beneficial to retirees.

Another form of trust, the "testamentary trust," is designed to manage your assets for the benefit of your beneficiaries beginning at the time of your death. We recommend the responsible and profitable management of your assets and your family's resources that a trust can provide; that's why we've made these new trust services available to you through our offices. You don't have to be a Wayne Bank customer to take advantage of these trust services. They're for anyone.

To find out more about how trust services can be important to you, telephone 721-4151 or send for a copy—it's free and without obligation—of "Our Family of Trust Services." It could be the most profitable reading you've done in years.

Mayor William Oakley took a tour of the vocational education facilities at Romulus High School during National Vocational Education Week and had his blood pressure tested. He's shown here getting a reading from Alfreda Rooks, a junior in the health occupations class. Despite the rigors of two hard-fought election campaigns last fall and being No. 1 administrator in the City of Romulus, Oakley's reading was 117 over 80. Oakley was one of 20 visitors who took the tour. While happy with the growth of vocational education at Romulus High School, Oakley said he felt a balanced program of education was needed to provide for the needs of all students.

Pack holds banquet

The Romulus Civic League Building provided the setting for the annual Blue and Gold Banquet of Cub Scout Pack 808 of Romulus.

Special guests of the pack for the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Ashner, president of the Mt. Pleasant School PTO; The Rev. and Mrs. Bob Dickson; Mr. and Mrs. Baker, president of the Romulus Civic League; and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sanders, unit commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America.

Entertainment for the banquet was provided by the Order of the Arrow Indian Dancers of the Huron District.

During the banquet awards were presented to several Cub Scouts. Awards went to Mark Boyd, citizenship; Scott McNett, citizenship; Fred Nelson, aquanaut; Mark Furtaw, Bear badge; Larry Rarrick, Bear badge; Calvin Johnson, Wolf badge; Charles Gasser, Webelos colors, Wolf badge, artist, outdoorsman and naturalist; and John Siskoff, Bobcat badge.

Libby McNett earned her Leader's Training patch, and Laura Gasser, a special award for the most participating non-committee member.

Brighten day with blooms

You can brighten the gray days of winter with spring flowers by following some tips from Michigan State University horticulture specialist Lee Taylor on forcing early flowering shrubs and trees.

Forcing means to bring a plant into bloom ahead of its normal flowering period outdoors, Taylor explained. Bulbs — narcissus, hyacinth and others — are the most commonly forced plants. But you can also make branches of pussy willow, forsythia, quince, maple, hickory, fruit trees and other trees and shrubs bloom indoors in the winter.

Begin by collecting 1½ to 3-foot-long branches from the plants. Cut them carefully with a sharp knife or pruning tool so you don't injure the plants. Collect them when the temperature is above freezing, if possible.

Bring the branches indoors and place the bases of the stems in a bucket of water. Keep the bucket in a well lighted spot at a temperature of about 60 degrees, and mist the flower buds several times a day as they start to open. Start using the branches for decoration as soon as the flower buds begin to show color.

To help the flowers last as long as possible, make sure the base of each stem is always in water. Place the branches in a cool spot — about 40 degrees — at night. This will double or triple the length of time the flowers will last.

After the flowers fade and fall off, discard the branches.

What protection should I have for my family?

Most people feel the responsibility to assure their family or survivors a reasonably smooth adjustment to life without you. Fulfilling this responsibility helps greatly in your peace of mind.

Life insurance protection, written up by a knowledgeable agent to suit your situation, is an important step.

A will is an essential document that will assure your estate will be directed as you desire. State laws vary so a competent lawyer in the state of your residence is your best advisor. Important items to include in your will might include the naming of an executor, your bequests of significant properties, trust funds, and any memorial or remembrance gifts.

Pre-planning your funeral arrangements is also a great relief to your survivors. You definitely will relieve their burdens in their hours of sorrow and we can help you with this without cost or obligation.

Keep in mind that safe-deposit boxes are usually inaccessible for some time after a death. A small savings account or a book of Traveler's Checks which are immediately available will help until the estate is settled.

Terror tactics studied

Terrorist incidents happen at any time, any place: at the Olympics, in the quiet of the Dutch countryside, at any major airport. On March 21, at 9 p.m. Channel 56 will devote an entire evening to the explosive problem via a two-hour special with live-by-satellite hook-ups from Rome, London and Tel Aviv.

"Terrorism — The World At Bay" will attempt to understand the enormity of the issue by defining it, looking at how governments are coping with it and by listening to what psychiatrists, journalists, world leaders and others who have been dealing with terrorism have to say about it.

Also, films from Sweden, Canada, England, Germany and Italy will be featured to further illustrate the global crisis and to find out why a handful of people are virtually able to hold the world at bay.

"Terrorism — The World At Bay" intends to reverse the way terrorists have used television in the past by providing a forum for some of the brightest minds in the world to work toward a solution. Expected to take part in the live telecast are Dr. Frank Ochberg, leading psychiatrist from the National Institute of Mental Health; Peter Walton of Scotland Yard; General Rehavam Zeevi, former advisor to the Israeli government; and Ulrich Wegner, head of a German SWAT team.

Shepp Quartet, Harris Trio will team up for two concerts

The Archie Shepp Quartet and the Barry Harris Trio will be in concert for two nights—March 17 and 18—at the Rackham Auditorium on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The two groups will perform at 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. both nights. The concerts are being presented by Eclipse Jazz, which operates under the auspices of the university's Major Events Office and Activities Center.

Shepp, although heavily influenced by John Coltrane, has always had a sound of his own. His gutsy, vocal tone gives his music a more traditional sound, but his influences and individuality make him a true modernist.

Since the 1960s, Shepp has undergone many changes both musically and occupationally. He has incorporated African elements into his music and has played in straight bebop settings with some of the old masters, such as Philly Joe Jones and Hank Mobley.

Since the beginning of the '70s, Shepp has embarked on the career of a college professor, at the University of Buffalo and then at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Harris continues in the tradition of straight bebop piano. A direct disciple of Bud Powell, Harris has created a power and drive in his playing that makes up for any of Bud Powell's inconsistencies.

Born in Detroit in 1929, Harris remained there almost all of his life. He was the focal point of the Detroit jazz scene during the 1950s, when a great number of local Detroit musicians, such as Pepper Adams, Paul Chambers, Doug Watkins and Charles McPherson, regarded Harris as their mentor.

He left for New York in 1960 to play for Cannonball Adderly. Since then he has led his own trio and played with many of his old Detroit sidemen, including Yusef Lateef and McPherson.

Tickets, which cost $4.50 and $3.50, are available at the Michigan Union Box Office.

Marathon opens Big Band Bash

A nearly 30-hour marathon, kicked off with a "Big Band Bash," will climax Channel 56's Festival '78, the major annual awareness and fund-raising campaign of public television.

From early evening Mar. 18, to late night Mar. 19, Channel 56 will present approximately 28 hours of continuous entertainment programs, with intermission festivities live from the studios of WNET-New York. For the first time in public television history, Public Broadcasting Service stations will join to present a marathon of national programming, as part of a nationwide drive to raise money to keep public television on the air.

Hugh Downs, Dick Cavett, Julia Child and Jean Marsh are just a few of the hosting celebrities who will make appearances.

The marathon will open with a three-hour salute to the sounds of the '40s, called "Big Band Bash." Live performances of some of the biggest names in the business will be taped and rebroadcast from New York's Statler Hilton and New Jersey's famed Meadowbrook.

Among those featured will be Johnny Desmond, Dizzy Gillespie, Helen Forrest, Earl Hines, Sammy Kaye, Don Cornell, Count Basie, Maynard Ferguson and Woody Herman. The "Big Band Bash" runs from 8 to 11 p.m.

Film footage will include early performances of such immortals as Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Miles Davis, Artie Shaw, Spike Jones, Thelma Houston and Sarah Vaughn.

Other programs of interest during the night-long, non-stop marathon include the entire three hours of "Dracula" at 12:30 a.m., Dickens' classic "Great Expectations" at 3:30 a.m. and "The Best of Ernie Kovacs" at 6 a.m.

On Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. will be a reprise of "Don Giovanni" and at 8 p.m. the history of public television comes alive on "The Great American Dream Machine Revisited."

Deaf pageant planned

The Michigan Association for the Deaf will present the first annual Miss Deaf Michigan Beauty Pageant on April 22 at 8:30 p.m. in "The Theatre" at Marygrove College, 8425 West McNichols Road at Wyoming, Detroit.

Ray Parks, renowned actor and member of the National Theatre for the Deaf, will emcee the pageant, which is open to all hearing-impaired young ladies, age 18 through 28, who have a hearing loss of 65 decibels or more (ASA) or 75 decibels or more (ISO).

The winner of the pageant will compete with other state pageant winners from across the nation in the Miss Deaf America Pageant, to be held later this summer in Rochester, New York.

Tickets for this special event are $7 (advance) or $8 (at the door), and the cost of the ticket includes a reception after the pageant. For ticket reservations, or further information, write to 4312 Courville, Detroit 48224, or call 886-2663.

Love is seen and felt

He died for you and for me...

The Sumpter Nondenominational Church of Pentecostal Love brings you greetings in the name of Jesus. A place where you can come and worship in Spirit and Truth, a place where love is seen and felt, but above all, the moving and working of the Holy Spirit. We believe God!

Ephesians 1:19: "And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power."

God wants to bless us today, and He wants to set us free through His Son, Jesus. He wants to deliver us from sadness, grief, unhappiness, and depression. Can you believe Him as His Word speaks out to us today? Praise God, can you say with me, "Lord, I Believe"? His blood never loses its power!

God wrought this same power in Christ when he raised him from the dead. And set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places — Ephesians 1:20, 21.

We are coming into the celebration of Easter over this great land, the crucifixion and resurrection of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. He died for you and me, and He arose that you and I might have a chance of eternal life in Him. Praise you, Jesus.

Isaiah saw Him as being despised and rejected and acquainted with grief. "But He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon him and with His stripes we are healed. 1 Peter 2:24: "Who His own self bare our sins in His own body on the tree, that we being dead to sins should live unto righteousness; by whose stripes you were healed". God has set His Son Jesus in command of His Church. Therefore, He has the ability to control, and He gives us His wisdom to do what He demands.

On the day of Pentecost, Peter cried out (Acts 2:22): "Ye men of Israel, hear these words. Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God, (We must be approved of God to do His will), among you by miracles and wonders and signs, Which God did by Him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know: Ye have taken and by wicked hands have crucified and slain. Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death!"

He Lives! He Lives! Praise God He Lives!

He lives today in us, and will work miracles, wonders and signs today as yesterday, if we turn our lives over to Him to use us His own way. Just like He did Peter and John in the third chapter of Acts (read the whole chapter, it will be a blessing to your soul). Peter and John went up to the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. A man, lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called, Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple as usual. He didn't know, but this day was his Day of Deliverance. Peter fastening his eyes upon him with John, said "Look on us! (Believe me, He was expecting to receive something from them)." Peter said to him: "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee; In the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk!" The Bible teaches us that he immediately received strength.

This man walked because Peter and John believed according to God's mighty POWER for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edifying of the body of Christ!

Dream Machine Revisited looks at public TV at 25

A review of the highlights of the first 25 years of public television will be presented on "The Great American Dream Machine Revisited," Sunday at 8 p.m. as part of Festival '78, public television's major annual awareness and fund-raising campaign.

This two-hour retrospective will be in the sometimes serious, usually humorous style of the popular "The Great American Dream Machine" with Marshall Efron.

Efron's short history of public television will lead into a parade of famous performers and excerpts from favorite shows, including Julia Child, Mister Rogers, Big Bird, Monty Python, Rita Moreno, Bill Cosby, Peggy Lee, Arthur Fiedler, Stevie Wonder, Bill Buckley, Dick Cavett, Robert MacNeil and The Electric Company.

Dance, which has become a major force on public television over the past 25 years, will be featured in an interview with Martha Graham 20 years ago and in segments from the Graham company's performances of "Appalachian Spring" in 1958 and 1976.

Drama, a PBS specialty over the years, is highlighted by excerpts from Tennessee Williams' play, "Eccentricities of a Nightingale" and William Shakespeare's, "Taming of the Shrew."

Other important segments deal with public affairs, science, classical music and educational programs. The program closes with the Beatles.

The college scene

Sims tapped for Phi Beta Kappa at Albion

Norman L. Sims, a senior chemistry major from Romulus, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Albion College.

Sims, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Sims of Ozga Road, is a graduate of Romulus Senior High School.

Phi Beta Kappa, a national scholastic honor society, seeks to recognize senior students who excel in the liberal arts. Albion College's chapter, established in 1940, was the first at a private college in Michigan.

Students elected to Phi Beta Kappa must have a minimum cumulative grade point average of 3.5, but attainment of that average does not guarantee election. The selection group also considers each candidate range of interests.

Collette R. Pollard of Fret Road, Belleville, is a degree candidate for the winter term commencement at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Ms. Pollard is up for a bachelor of science degree in family ecology communication arts.

Terri Houle of Romulus, a senior at Central Michigan University is a member of the university's Student Foundation.

The purpose of the foundation is to promote public support of CMU. Members act as student liaisons with the campus community and the media.

Dale Charles Nollf of Edison Avenue, Belleville, received his bachelor of science degree from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

Also receiving a bachelor of business administration degree was Hazel Eileen Norris of Orchard Street, Romulus.

Four Belleville residents have attained 4.0 grade point averages during the winter term at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Garnering perfect marks were Lisa L. Chin of Belleville Road, John Dougherty of South Biggs Avenue, who is majoring in engineering sciences; Charles W. Dougherty of South Biggs, who is majoring in psychology; and Linda L. Upton of Expressway, who is majoring in human ecology.

What are big energy guzzlers?

What are the big energy guzzlers in a home? They are not the lights and small appliances, not even ranges, ovens and dryers. From 75 to 90 percent of all the energy used in the home goes for three essentials, heating, cooling and hot water.

This is one of the many facts and insights to be found in a new, free booklet, "Energy and Your Home," edited by noted science writer Isaac Asimov. It deals with basics, but also contains guidelines and tips for the homeowner interested in saving energy and money.

It says, for example, that if all of the air leaks in a poorly caulked and weatherstripped house were gathered in one spot they could equal a one-square-foot hole in the wall.

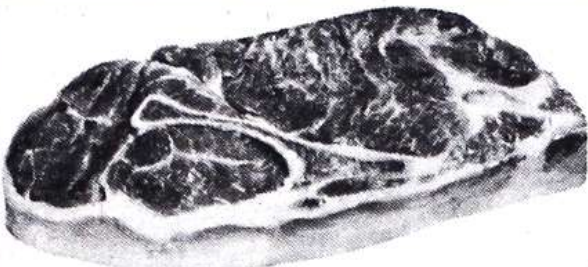

To find out if a window leaks, the booklet suggests that you tape a piece of thin plastic over it on a windy day and see if it billows.

The booklet says that as much as one-quarter of our heating dollars can be carried off by heat escaping through windows and doors. Sealed double (insulating) glass reduces the loss by half, and storm windows do somewhat better by trapping a deeper layer of insulating air and covering leaks in the frames.

"For every person who reads and acts," he says, "there will be a small extension of the deadly deadline that faces American and the world. And if enough people act, as a result of reading this booklet or for any other reason, the deadline may be lifted forever."

For a free copy of "Energy and Your Home," write to York Division of Borg-Warner Corp., Dept. 14, Box 1592, York, Pa. 17405.

3D1. Motion by Canejo, supported by Block, to adopt Resolution 78-078:

WHEREAS: Act No. 198 of the Public Acts of 1974 is designed to provide a stimulus in the form of significant tax incentives to industry to renovate and/or expand aging plants and to build new plants in Michigan; and

WHEREAS: Under the provisions of the Act, a local governmental unit in which the total property tax levy is at least thirty (30) mills may establish property tax incentives to attract new plants to the area; and

WHEREAS: Said Act provides that a firm may apply for and be issued an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate which entitles the facility to exemption from ad valorem taxes and personal property taxes for a period of twelve (12) years. In lieu of the property tax, the firm will pay a specific tax known as the Industrial Facility Tax. The Industrial Facility Tax for a new plant in an industrial development district is determined by the ad valorem property tax levied by the municipality instead, however, of using the total mills levied, only half the millage rate is applied; and

WHEREAS: Said Act provides that seventy-five (75 percent) percent of the owners of property to be affected by any proposed industrial development district may apply to the local governmental unit for the establishment of an industrial development district; and

WHEREAS: Campbell Development Company, did on February 21, 1978, submit a request to the City of Romulus to establish an industrial development district, its description as follows:

A parcel of land in the Southeast ¼ of Section 16, Town 3 South, Range 9 East, City of Romulus, Wayne County, Michigan, more particularly described as commencing at the East ¼ corner of Section 16; thence S. 00degrees03'40" West 104.83 feet on East line of Section 16 to the Point of Beginning; thence S. 00degrees03'40" West 689.70 feet on East line of Section 16; thence N. 89degrees56'20" West 457.00 feet; thence N. 00degrees3'40" East 553.00 feet to the Southerly Right of Way line of the Norfolk and Western Railroad (formerly Wabash Railroad); thence North 73 degrees24'30" East 477.00 feet on Southerly Right of Way line of Norfolk and Western Railroad (formerly Wabash Railroad) to the Point of beginning, containing 6.5188 acres more or less.

and,

WHEREAS: The Campbell Development Company represents more than seventy-five (75 percent) percent of the property owners to be included in the aforementioned district as required by the provisions of Public Act 198; and

WHEREAS: Public Act 198 requires that a public hearing be held to hear any objections to and all reasons for the establishment of an industrial development district when a request is received by the local municipality for the establishment of such a district; and

WHEREAS: City Council of the City of Romulus is cognizant of the critical employment situation existing within its corporate limits compounded by an equally critical employment situation in the State and indeed the country; and

WHEREAS: The establishment of the requested industrial development district would go far to encourage the Campbell Development Company to continue with additional projects on this site resulting in additional jobs for the citizens of the City of Romulus, as well as, a substantial increase to the City's tax base.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That the City Council of the City of Romulus hold a Public Hearing on March 14, 1978, at 7:00 p.m. in the Romulus City Council Chambers, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus Michigan, to take testimony from any and all parties having objections to the establishment of the requested industrial development district and to take testimony from any and all parties having reason to support the establishment of the requested industrial development district.

Mahalak: Legislature tackles tanker problem

There have been a number of new developments in the legislature on tanker safety problems, according to State Rep. Edward Mahalak of Romulus.

Following House approval of a bill to allow the State Police to temporarily order trucks hauling gasoline and other flammable substances off the roads, the Senate passed a more drastic measure, which would ban "double bottom" tankers carrying highly flammable substances, the 38th District Democrat said.

The ban would go into effect May 1.

The bill is under committee consideration in the House.

The Governor had previously imposed an emergency ban on the tankers from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. The bill approved by the Senate originally would have set a May 1 ban in those counties, expanding it to the rest of the state as of next Jan. 1, but it was amended to make the ban statewide on May 1, Mahalak said.

The Senate bill would also limit other tankers to no more than 9,000 gallons of the hazardous material, primary gasoline.

There were objections to the bill by those who claimed it would cause fuel shortages, could cause an increased highway danger because of more non-double bottom tankers, and that it makes essentially useless a recently commissioned study on the safety of double bottoms," he added. "On the other hand, there has been growing public concern following a series of accidents involving the huge tandem tankers, which have included spills, fires, deaths and loss of life, not to mention traffic tie-ups.

The 9,000-gallon limit was introduced in an effort to forestall a new round of competition in building super-large single bottoms, and to equalize the competition between independent haulers and large companies, Mahalak added.

The double bottom tankers still could carry other liquid materials, such as fuel oil, as long as the flash point for flammability is under the level specified in the bill.

Approved at the same time by the Senate was a measure which provides for spot inspections of tankers carrying hazardous material, and the certification of their drivers. The bill also would create a commission to develop a safer design for the vehicles, Mahalak said. The bill is under House committee consideration.

The bill that was passed by the House and sent to the Senate would authorize the State Police to take tankers carrying dangerous cargo off the roads in times of severe weather, unusual road conditions, natural or man-made disasters or in other emergency situations in which the tankers could be a threat to life or property. The ban could be statewide, or only apply to certain parts of the state.

The bill also would allow the State Police to prohibit double bottom tankers carrying hazardous material or restrict the speeds that the tankers can travel.

In other action, the House, concerned about rising hospitalization costs, has come up with a plan which should help to control those costs, Mahalak said.

One of the reasons for high cost is the overhead caused by excess and unneeded hospital beds, he said. A bill approved by the House would require health authorities to identify areas that have more hospital beds than are needed and eliminate the excess beds. The excess beds could be eliminated through hospital consolidations or closing parts or all of hospitals. Hospitals with excess beds also would be prohibited from new construction unless they could demonstrate an actual need.

The bill was amended to give special consideration to hospitals that are more than 25 miles from the next nearest facility.

The plan could result in the elimination of as many as 5,000 to 6,000 excess hospital beds within five years, according to one estimate. The bill is in the Senate.

Another measure sent to the Senate would require that certain additional types of health problems be reported promptly to the Department of Public Health.

Deep dish apple pies

Countless Americans rate apple pie as their all-time favorite dessert, but each fancier has a special recipe that outranks the other.

Individual Deep-Dish Apple Pies, made with quick-cooking tapioca, enjoy great popularity and are even more delicious when served with Spicy Topping. Made with Dream Whip whipped topping mix, it remains fluffy, fresh and flavorful, even when made up in advance.

As pictured, a separate bowl of Spicy Topping is the ideal way to serve it. It is then readily available for family and guests to help themselves to as generous portions as they like. The topping serves a dual purpose as a dollop in steaming hot coffee, a traditional "go-along" with apple pie.

Why not keep a bowl of prepared topping in the refrigerator? It stores well, up to four days covered in refrigerator, and is ready to crown pies, puddings, cakes, fresh fruit and hot or cold beverages in elegant style.

Individual Deep-Dish Apple Pies

1-1/2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
3/4 cup sugar
one-eighth teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash of allspice
1 can (20 oz.) sliced apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
two-thirds cup shortening

3 to 4 tablespoons (about) cold water

Combine tapioca, sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt and the spices in a bowl; mix in apples and lemon juice. Let stand about 15 minutes. Spoon into four 10-ounce ovenproof glass baking dishes.

Meanwhile, measure flour and salt into bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle in water, a small amount at a time, mixing lightly with a fork until all particles are moistened and cling together when pastry is pressed into a ball. Cover with a damp cloth and let stand a few minutes. Roll out pastry very thin (less than 1/8 inch thick). Cut 4 rounds, 1 inch larger than top of baking dishes. Cut several slits or design in center of each. Moisten edges of dishes. Center crust on fillings. Open slits to permit escape of steam. Seal, forming a standing rim, and flute. Bake at 425 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes, or until crust is golden. Makes 4 servings.

Spicy Topping

1/2 cup cold milk
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg or ginger
1 envelope whipped topping mix

Blend all ingredients well in deep narrow-bottom bowl. Whip at high speed with hand or electric beater until topping peaks. Then whip 2 minutes longer until topping is light and fluffy. Makes about 2 cups.

Individual portions are special

Apple pie is even more delicious with spicy topping, made from whipped topping mix. Favorite flavorings are easy to add so make plenty to use on these individual deep-dish apple pies and for a dollop on the hot coffee served alongside. (Photo courtesy Dream Whip whipped topping mix.)

Bobbin lace demonstration highlights Study Club meet

A demonstration and exhibit of bobbin lace were enjoyed March 8 at the monthly meeting of the Belleville Women's Study Club. Held at the Lemontree clubhouse, the program featured Mrs. Robert Campbell of Ypsilanti who became interested in the novel art while working as a tour guide for Ypsilanti Historical Commission. Noting a framed piece of bobbin lace in one of the historical homes, she decided to delve into a few books on the handicraft and eventually found herself being self-taught and later seeking more experienced help.

Mrs. Campbell spoke on the background of the intricate lace and brought several samples along for viewing. She has also exhibited and demonstrated her work at the Michigan State Fair.

The informative evening was planned by the fine arts committee chaired by Mrs. Gerald Miller. She and her committee, Mrs. Royce Smith and Mrs. Pat Baughman, later served St. Patrick's Day theme refreshments to club members and their guests: Mrs. Harold Campbell of Westland; Mrs. Esther Lindemann, Shar Tator and Mrs. Richard Smith.

The business meeting was conducted by club president, Mrs. Don White.

Ernest Young honored at 85 by two lodges

Ernest Young, who was 85 years old Sunday, March 5, was the surprised guest of honor at a potluck dinner given by members of Galaxy Oddfellow Lodge 384 and Astral Rebekah Lodge 250.

The party was held at the 100F Hall on Savage Road with some 65 well-wishers on hand for the occasion. Special guests included the honoree's son, Gaal Young and his wife, Myrtle, and his daughter, Gertrude Harris, and her husband, Harold. Also in attendance were his four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren and their respective spouses.

Mr. Young, a loyal member of the two lodges, joined the order in 1914. He is a Past Grand and holds a lifetime membership. He continues to attend lodge faithfully and participates in all its activities.

After cutting and serving a decorated birthday cake and the presentation and opening of gifts, the group enjoyed music and games.

Early deadline

Vacation time is here for your Suburban Living Editor so, in her absence, News Editor Sue McDonald, will be taking over. In order to make things a little easier on her (she'll be tackling two jobs), we are moving up the deadline for news items for the next two weeks to Wednesday, March 22 and March 29, at 2 p.m. Please have all stories for the Suburban Living pages in by that time. Your cooperation will see your news in print.

Romulus senior citizens, in process of revitalization, seeking members

Romulus Senior Citizens Club No. 1, which went through a period of inactivity and apathy, is now undergoing a whole new revamping, is considering re-writing its by-laws and has scheduled an interesting list of guest speakers and programs.

Club president Vince Parratta and publicity chairman David Ries visited the Romulus Roman office to say that they are looking for more senior citizens to join the club. Any Romulus resident who is 55 years of age may visit at the weekly club meetings which are held on Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the VFW Hall on Huron River Drive, east of Hannan Road.

A recent speaker, who stressed fire safety and the need for smoke detectors, was John Wilhide, chief of the Romulus Fire Department. Scheduled for a future meeting is a member of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department who will speak on safety in the home.

Also on the agenda for upcoming sessions is an early Easter celebration on March 21 when a potluck dinner will be held at 12 noon at the VFW. Baked ham will be provided from funds in the club treasury and will be cooked by Wilma Pomroy, on whom members are always able to call for help in the kitchen.

Then on March 17, the distaff side of the club will hold a bake sale at Manufacturers Bank at the corner of Goddard and Shook Roads and also at the Security Bank on Wayne Road, north of I-94 in Romulus. If you have a sweet tooth, you won't want to miss buying a delicious homemade pie, cake, cookies or bread that will be for sale.

A 50-50 raffle is currently underway with plans for awarding the three prizes on May 9. You do not have to be present to win and donation is only 50 cents per ticket.

Currently at the helm of the senior citizens "ship" besides Vince Parratta are Helen Matewicz, 1st vice-president; Adelia Wilson, 2nd vice-president; Dorothy La Londe, secretary; Celia Renke, treasurer; Edna Maciejewski, financial treasurer; Melissa Bell, miscellaneous treasurer; Charlie Kitzmiller and Walter Zaleski, sergeants-at-arms, and Frank Wisniewski, Dorothy Icenogle (who is currently acting-secretary) and Eva Harrison, trustees.

Also holding chairmanships along with David Ries are Louise Buczkowski, bi-laws and Celeste Fisher, program.

Meet interesting new people or refresh old acquaintances while enjoying some worthwhile programs and activities each Tuesday. Come and see what the Romulus Senior Citizens Club No. 1 has to offer.

Romulus resident earns law degree

A Romulus resident, Ernest R. Bazzana of 36651 Grant, graduated cum laude from Detroit College of Law where he earned his juris doctor degree last December.

Standing academically in the top 10 per cent of his class, Bazzana was on the honor roll for the years of 1976 and 1977 and was a participant in the Student Defender Program and the Landlord-Tenant Clinic.

He was awarded his bachelor of arts degree in pre-law studies at the University of Michigan in 1973 and for several months last year was a research and writing clerk for Berry, Moorman, King, Lott & Cook P.C. in Detroit. He sat for the bar last month and will learn the results in May.

Bazzana and his wife, Catherine, have been residents of Romulus for some seven years. They are the parents of two daughters, Amy Beth and Karen Anne.

Plant projects for kids: Marigolds from seed

Growing plants indoors from seed can be fun. You can grow dozens of popular plants from seed, according to Bobbi Lawrence, Washtenaw County Horticultural Agent.

For an easy beginner's project, she suggests marigolds. The very short varieties are the best for growing indoors. One packet of seeds is all you need to fill a window with brightly colored, fragrant blossoms.

Sow the seeds on a mixture of vermiculite and peat moss in a shallow container. The plastic trays in which grocery stores pack vegetables work very well. You can also use the bottoms of paper or plastic milk cartons or jugs.

Don't use ordinary garden soil to start your seeds, Lawrence advises. Garden soil contains the organisms that cause the seedling disease called "damping off." You can destroy these organisms by wetting the soil, covering it with aluminum foil and baking it in shallow pans in the oven. Forty-five minutes at 300 degrees F. should kill them. It is much easier, however, to buy a sterile material — such as vermiculite — to start your seeds.

Press the planting medium into the container. Then shake the seeds onto the surface. Try to space them evenly, either in rows or just scattered around. If you want only a few plants, sow only a few seeds. Then cover the seeds with a thin layer of the planting medium. Marigold seeds are not very thick, so just barely cover them. Moisten the surface of the growing medium with water. Watering from below is best. For this, of course, you need a container with holes punched in the bottom.

You can set it in a pan or sink of water and let the water move up through the holes into the growing medium. If your container has no holes in the bottom, use a fine sprayer or mister to wet the material. Be careful not to wash the seeds away.

Label the container with the date you planted the seed and the kind of seed used. Then enclose the whole container in a clear plastic bag. This will hold the moisture in so that you probably won't have to water again until after the seeds have sprouted.

Place the container in a shady spot where temperatures range between 65 and 85 degrees F. Seeds need warm temperatures for germination. Don't put the container where the sun will shine directly on it, however.

As soon as most of the seeds sprout, remove the plastic bag and move the tray to a cool, brightly lighted spot. Cool temperatures and bright light are necessary to keep plants from growing tall and spindly.

When plants are big enough to be handled easily, transplant them into the smallest sized pots. Fill each pot with growing medium — sterile potting soil or vermiculite and peat moss — to within one-half inch of the top. Firm the soil and make a hole in the center of it with a pencil stick. Be sure the hole is big enough to hold all the plant's roots without squeezing them.

Hold the seedling by the leaves and place the roots in the hole. Then firm the soil around them and water. Place the seedlings in a shaded spot for a couple of days while they recover from the shock of transplanting. Then set them in a sunny windowsill to grow.

High Flyer 4-H Club has a busy calendar

At its Feb. 27 award banquet, several members of the High Flyer 4-H Club were honored for outstanding work in their project areas.

Crystal Williams received an award for crocheting and freezing; Pam Zollar for macrame; Connie Cook for leadership; and Linda Willman for rabbits.

The club currently is preparing for a fashion and talent show to be held April 1 at the Westland Shopping Center. On April 28, 29 and 30 they will participate in an ethnic festival in Westland. Members have been studying about Polish culture and will have a booth featuring Polish crafts and baked goods.

The 4-H members are enjoying workshops in sewing, ceramics, woodworking and basket weaving.

Current money making projects include balloon sales at McDonald's in Romulus each Tuesday from 4:30 to 7 p.m. and the sale of Stanley products which may be ordered by calling Agnes Cook at 697-8822. Proceeds from the projects will be used to purchase jackets for club members.

Barbershop program includes her grandson

Mrs. Winifred Gault of Roland Street attended the Wayne Chapter of the National Barber Shop Singers held at Our Lady of Mercy High School in Livonia on March 3. Her grandson, John Lawrence of Livonia, is one of the singers. The three and a half hour program was a benefit for the Institute of Logo Pedics in Wichita, Kans. The motto of the performers is "We sing so they might speak."

Mr. and Mrs. George Maki of Quirk Road motored to Columbus, Ohio over the weekend to visit their son, Dale Maki.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schultz and daughters, Dawn and Heather, of New Middletown, Ohio visited last weekend at the Riggs Road home of Mrs. Alice Wittrick. On Sunday the group, including Elmer Schultz of Tecumseh, had dinner at Haab's in Ypsilanti.

Mrs. Helen White of Bedell Street returned home March 5 from Mattoon, Ill. where she visited her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John Slugacki. John had been in the hospital for a month and is now recuperating from his heart attack.

Mrs. Rachel Hamilton, home from Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti where she was treated for a broken hip, is feeling well and would like to thank everyone for their prayers, cards and special thoughts since her accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Verne Clark of Bemis Road enjoyed a happy anniversary March 4 by driving to the Lion and Sword in Garden City for dinner and dancing.

Mrs. Mary Saksewski of S. Biggs Street and her neighbor, Mrs. Jean Flavell, flew to Largo, Fla. on Feb. 23 to visit with Dr. and Mrs. John Tator. They made the return trip via auto arriving home March 3.

Mrs. Clayton Saunders of Liberty Street was a weekend houseguest of Mrs. Harold Klaiss of River Rouge. On Sunday they attended a potluck dinner and fellowship hour and heard Dr. and Mrs. Paul Getty, United Methodist missionaries from Liberia, speak and show slides of West Africa.

Rumor has it that a local decorator, George Roberts, has been mixing business with pleasure. He has been decorating a new condominium belonging to Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Russell, also of Belleville, in Stuart, Fla. He now is back in Michigan enjoying the winter cold with the rest of us.

Mrs. Martin Elliott of Martz Road enjoyed her March 5 birthday by having her children over for a co-op dinner. Included in the list of guests were the Martin L. Elliott, Watson Whitt, and Bill Dunn families, Mrs. Doris Shukait, son Tim and his girlfriend, and daughter, Sandra. Vickie Elliott, a granddaughter, was also present. The group spent the afternoon visiting.

Mrs. Margaret Anderson of Sumpter Road attended the wedding reception of her grandson, Joel Anderson and Elana Kuman, held at the Robson Road home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs on March 4.

Cathy M. Pierson was guest of honor at a bridal shower, given by her maid of honor, Vicki Potter, and Linda Partin on March 8. Some 40 guests were present from Hamburg, Romulus, Wayne, Dearborn and Belleville.

A re-run of the '50's

The community was invited to "Rock Around the Clock" and that's just what they did for several hours March 4 at the 100F Hall on Savage Road. Sponsored by the Belleville Cougars, the dance featured continuous music by disco-jockey Pat O'Doherty. Guests were to appear in garb of the '50's and that they did with saddle shoes, pleated skirts, ponytails, shackle pants, T-shirts, leather jackets and D.A. haircuts very much in evidence. One foursome even came as members of the Mickey Mouse Club with their names in black felt on their shirts and their "ears on." Among the 175 attending were Gloria Traskos (left) secretary of the Cougars and one of her dance partners, Bob Courter of Belleville.

Lawn and garden guide for month of March

No matter whether March wears the face of the lion or the lamb. The fact that it's here means there's plenty to do to get ready for spring! Roberta Lawrence, Washtenaw County Horticultural Agent suggests the following lawn and garden chores are timely:

- Bring bulbs potted in November out of cold storage for forcing.
- Plant pansy and English daisy seeds outdoors.
- Check stored tubers and bulbs again and remove diseased, rotted or moldy ones.

- Pot up tuberous begonias late this month. Keep amaryllis foliage growing to build up the bulb for good bloom next season.

- Late in March, remove part of the mulch from strawberry plants. Be prepared to cover them again in case of a hard frost or freeze.

- Late in March remove the mulch from bulbs and biennials planted last fall.

- Sow seeds of annual slowers indoors for transplanting outdoors in May. Dusty miller, sweet alyssum, French marigold and flowering tobacco usually do well if started indoors under fluorescent light.

- Dig and prepare flower beds, garden plots and borders as soon as you can work the soil.

- Start seeds of cold-hardy vegetables indoors this month. These include broccoli, spinach, cauliflower, cabbage and Brussels sprouts.

- Uncover, prune and fertilize established roses in late March. Be sure to remove all winter-damaged canes.

- Check houseplants. Repot any that need it.
- In late March or early April, dethatch your lawn to remove matted grass and other debris.

- Seed turf areas. Expose the soil and loosen the soil surface before seeding. Use a blend of two or more improved bluegrass varieties or a mixture of one-third red fescue and two-thirds bluegrass. Rake the seed into the loosened soil and firm the soil.

- Rake lawns free of twigs, leaves and other debris.

- Rake and roll severely frost-heaved lawns to level the turf. Roll before it dries out. Rolling after the lawn dries will do little good.
- If you applied fertilizer to your lawn late last fall, hold off fertilizing this spring until the second half of May, when the lawn begins to lose its dark green color.

- After the snow melts in late March or early April, apply premergence crabgrass controls. This is recommended only if you had a crabgrass problem last year.

- Prune trees and grape vines. Do not prune lilacs, forsythia and other spring flowering ornamentals unless they have been damaged. Pruning now would remove the flower buds.

- Remove burlap or canvas screens from evergreens about March 15.

BPW delegates attend D.C. confab; report on visit with First Lady Roslyn

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville (BPW) held its monthly meeting March 6 at Faith United Methodist Church of Denton.

Since March is "Young Careerist Month", the young careerist committee was in charge of the evening. Members are Eva Luper, Susan De Foe, Dorothy Schroeder, Faye Sotomayor and Leona Farr, chairman, who presented the young careerist candidate, Beverly Clark, a realtor with Trust Realty of Belleville.

Miss Clark will compete with other candidates in the district for the state title when they attend the district meeting in Grosse Isle on April 26. Miss Susan Rosiak, who was the Michigan Young Careerist for 1977, spoke on her experiences while holding the honor. Miss Rosiak is editor of the Garden City Observer.

Faye Sotomayor, a member of the legislature committee, reported on the National Legislature Conference which she and Leona Farr attended in Washington, D.C. March 1 to 3. It was sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

More than 500 women from throughout the country heard members of Congress and professional lobbyists discuss the arts of successful lobbying on national issues.

Representatives Lindy Boggs (D-La.), Barbara Mikulski (D-Md.) and Newton Steers Jr. (R-Md.) explained the national legislative process and Carol Belamy, keynote speaker and newly elected president of the New York City Council, talked about the role of women in politics and her own career in big-city politics.

The conference highlighted such topics as "How to get what you want by lobbying" and "Building a grass roots organization." Lobbying techniques were put into practice Thursday morning when participants visited their members of Congress to push their points of view on current legislation.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. supports legislation to benefit women in such areas as credit and insurance, aging, education, employment, child care and family services, health, welfare and taxes.

The two delegates were thrilled and honored when First Lady Rosalyn Carter invited the entire BPW group to a reception at the White House on March 3. Members were escorted to the second floor where a 5-piece string ensemble played for their entertainment as they browsed through the beautiful rooms. After a brief welcome by their fellow club member, Mrs. Carter invited her guests for tea, coffee and cookies.

Also on the local club's business agenda, conducted by president Ruth Davis, were plans for the district meeting, state convention and the national convention.

The Belleville BPW invites any woman in the area who is presently employed to join their organization. For further information, please call the membership chairman, Gwen Ashe at 699-5030.

Girl Scout cookie sales top HV goal

Highest profits in the history of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council's annual cookie sales have been recorded by area Girl Scouts this year, according to Ruth Weber of Ann Arbor, who served as 1978 Council Cookie Sale Chairman.

The goal for this year's sale, which began the end of January and continued through the middle of February was 400,000 boxes sold. However, the final tallies showed that 451,464 were sold, for a total of $323,796.76 in Girl Scout profit.

Of this total, the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council receives $232,503.96 for camping scholarships, maintenance of its three camps, and office and general operations of the organization.

The balance, $90,292.80, goes to the participating troops for their own projects, community service work, purchase of camp and other troop equipment.

"The success of the sale must be attributed to the hard work of our adult volunteers and the nearly 7,000 Girl Scouts who participated in the sale," said Mrs. Weber.

Profits from the sale go to provide Girl Scouting for nearly 18,000 Girl Scouts in the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, which covers Washtenaw, Livingston, western Wayne and northern Monroe counties.

The sale is authorized by the State of Michigan under license number 9054; the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council is a United Way agency.

April bride-elect feted at showers

Christine Hoeft, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoeft of Belleville, was recently honored at two bridal showers, the first of which was held on Feb. 19 at the VFW Hall on Bemis Road.

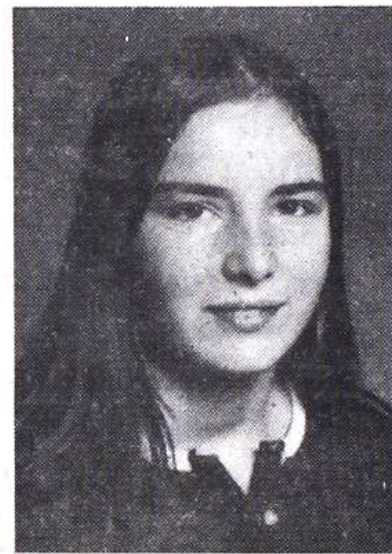

Decorations carried out Chris' wedding colors of yellow and green. Party games and buffet of salads, chicken, jello relishes and desserts highlighted the afternoon party. Co-hostesses were the bride-elect's future attendants, Joy Brasser, Cindy Hoeft and Cathy Hoeft, all of Belleville, and Jackie Loyer of Ypsilanti.

Some 40 guests were in attendance from Farmington, Clarkston, Warren and Belleville with the bridegroom's grandmother Loyer being flown to the shower in her son's airplane from her home in Mikado, located in Northern Michigan.

The second of Chris' showers was also held at the VFW Hall where a yellow and green motif was used for decorating. Some 45 relatives and friends were greeted by the three hostesses: Marge Hoeft of Plymouth, Marsha Garvaglia of Detroit and Sue Hoeft of Westland. The group, which arrived from Plymouth, Dearborn, Wyandotte, Canton, Royal Oak and Belleville for the occasion, were served a buffet of ham, scalloped potatoes, meatballs, salad, rolls and desserts after a bingo session at which small houseplants were awarded as prizes.

Chris will become the bride of Darwin Loyer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Loyer of Bemis Road, on April 8. St. Anthony's Catholic Church has been reserved for their spring wedding.

In observance of their 60th anniversary, the Cullins were presented with a plant of golden chrysanthemums, many cards and a special cake decorated with yellow roses.

Harold has served the club since its inception 11 years ago, working as chairman of many projects and annually promoting the club's assistance to the Belleville Kiwanis Club in its sales of Christmas trees and Easter flowers. He and his wife have been in charge of visitation to elderly sick members and friends for many years. They are club favorites and previously had been honored with life memberships.

The club has issued an invitation to all area seniors to attend its potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, March 16, at Edgemont Elementary School. The program will feature an address by State Rep. Gary Owen who will answer questions and discuss current legislation.

Retirement: One's dream, another's dread

By MAUREEN BEATTY

Retirement — one man's dream, another man's dread. I was surprised at the response I received this week on the subject of retirement. To draw any conclusions from the 11 people interviewed would be difficult. The majority had taken early retirements because of health reasons. Most of these men felt they would have preferred to work to age 65, but only a few of them said they wished they could have worked beyond that age.

Walter Dolinski may have summed up the feelings of the men interviewed with the statement: "Most people would prefer to retire, if they could afford it." In this day of Women's Lib, I wasn't about to conclude this article without a woman's opinion, I talked to a charming 72-year-old who has no intention of retiring in the near future.

Twenty years from now, or even 10, the number of women who will benefit from their own retirement funds will increase dramatically. The question of retirement, then, probably will elicit a whole new set of answers.

But as one woman put it so aptly: "I can't ever retire... I'm a homemaker." Now there's food for thought.

The question this week: "If there had not been a mandatory age for retirement when you turned 65, would you have continued working?"

Claude Berard, 66, of Wayne: "I didn't retire, I quit. But if I had a choice, I would have continued to work part-time after age 65. Now I do volunteer work."

George Bedell, 86, of Wayne: "I would have continued working. It is better for your mind and your health. When you have nothing to do it can lead to trouble."

Martin Jasin, 77, of Romulus: "I retired at age 62, but if I had been able to, I would have continued working to age 65. I was looking forward to retiring at 65 though."

Stanley Fritz, 68, of Westland: "I retired at age 60 for health reasons. I had planned on retiring at age 62 anyway. If I had known what retirement was like, I would never have gone to work in the first place!"

Fred Burr, 73, of Wayne: "I could have continued working after I turned 65, but I was glad to retire. I had worked for a long time. Since I retired, I've had some of the best years of my life."

Walter Dolinski, 68, of Taylor: "If I was able I would have worked, but I retired because of a disability. Otherwise I would have worked as long as possible. But most people would prefer to retire, if they could afford it."

William Carter, 67, of Westland: "I retired at age 62 because of a disability. I would have worked to age 65, but by then I would have been ready to retire."

Mason Baggett, 62, of Lincoln Park: "I would have retired. I retired at age 63 because of a disability. I enjoy retirement immensely. I have plenty of gardening to take care of, and I like riding around on my Harley Davidson. I have worked since I was 12 years old."

Joe Paprock, 74, of Westland: "I retired on disability. I would have retired at age 65 anyway though."

Kenneth Smith, 60, of Westland: "I retired at age 47. I would have preferred to work. Laying around is the worse thing a person can do. Being useless is no good."

Marie Lundy, 72, Redford Township: "I'm in the real estate business, and I'll work as long as I can. I love my work. I am a person who has to keep active. Some weeks I work seven days, some only five. Everybody should be able to work as long as they want or are able to. Retiring is the worse thing a person can do."

Washtenaw college sets up speakers bureau

A speakers bureau, formed to offer the communities in and around Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti with a wide range of programs for meetings of organizations, clubs or small group gatherings, opens this week at Washtenaw Community College.

Speakers who will be available through the bureau are members of the faculty and administration of Washtenaw Community College.

"Their topics reflect a great variety of talents and interest," Gunder Myran, president of the college, explained, noting that subject matter runs from tracing one's family roots and providing children with good mental health programs to designing the interior of a building to be a home not just a house and seeing the other side of a personality by playing mind games. In addition, special interest groups such as a children's theater, a jazz combo, gospellers also will be made available for public appearances.

Requests for this programming service, which is at no charge to the community, should be directed to Lola Jones, director of the Faculty Speakers Bureau, Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive. These requests should be made at least a month prior to meeting date.

Speakers who are registered with the bureau and their topics include: Donald Bylsma, social science instructor, "Mind Games...Seeing the Other Side of Yourself"; David Byrd, technical and industrial division instructor, "A House or a Home...What Makes the Difference"; Ivan Glusac, social science instructor, "Consumerism and the Older Adult" and "To Your Credit... Money Management" and "Trust and Wills"; Guy Hower, director of student services, "Financing Your College Education"; and James Jones, dean of student services, "The Art of Rational Living".

Norman Lederer, dean of occupational studies, "Occupational Education at WCC," "Women in the Occupations" and "How To Get and Hold a Job"; Herbert Martin, social sciences instructor, "The Psychology of Jury Selection" and "Mental Health Programs for Children"; Louis Miller, social sciences instructor, "Tracing Your Family History"; Gunder Myran, president, "The Role of Washtenaw Community College in Washtenaw County"; Robert Paulson, business and industrial management instructor, "Land of the Midnight Sun...A Slide Presentation of A Steamer Trip"; and Robert Plummer, social sciences instructor, "Sitting in the Catbird Seat...Mid-life Styles and New Careers To Avoid Social Death at 45" and "The First American Street Poet...A Visit with Carl Sandburg".

David Pollock, executive assistant to the president, "300 Years of Newspapers" and "A Brief History of American Newspapers"; and Sturart Susnick, social science instructor, "From My Side of the Meter...The Personal Account of a New York Taxicab Driver" and "The Mysteries of Mayan Civilization."

Music programs, which include performances of the WCC Faculty Five, the WCC Gospellers, the WCC Combo and The Rituals, also are available as are special performances of Dr. William Devereaux's Children's Theater.

Mackenzie ends Glenn '5' odyssey

Last period gush sweeps Westlanders

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

John Glenn's basketball season ended Friday night on a high note even though it wasn't a winning effort.

Gordie Davis' Rockets, an exciting ballclub to watch all season long, rose to the heights in the state district and regional playoffs.

But after winning four thrilling games in the state playoffs, the Rockets' state title dreams were ended Friday night when a talented Detroit Mackenzie team defeated them, 69-56, at Livonia Franklin for the Regional championship.

It was anybody's ballgame for three periods as the Rockets stayed step-for-step with the cat-quick Stags from Detroit and trailed only 52-50 entering the final quarter. Although many thought Glenn would be blown out by Mackenzie's high-powered offense and run-and-gun scoreboard show, the Rockets clung desperately to their foes.

The Stags, on the slick outside shooting of All-State guard Keith Smith, rolled to a 21-17 first quarter edge as their stellar guard pumped in four long field goals and dazzled the crowd with his precise passing.

With many in the crowd expecting Glenn to be blitzed by Mackenzie's quickness, the Rockets became the darlings of the throng as they closed the gap to 35-34 at halftime.

Far from being blown out, Glenn gained confidence with each passing minute. With mini-magician Daran Armstrong and Ed Bates keying their attack from the guard slots, the Rockets barely trailed, 52-50, heading into the final stanza.

But here is where Glenn's flirtation with a state championship was stopped by the Stags, who upped their season mark to 21-2. Coach Elbert Richmond's well-coached squad shut off the inside and Glenn's outside shooting went cold as the Stags edged to a decisive 17-6 edge in the final quarter to end Glenn's odyssey.

Glenn hit only one-of-10 from the floor in the final period as Mackenzie's delay game the last seven minutes of the contest ended the Rockets' hopes of a major upset.

Although Keith Smith only scored two baskets in the final period, he geared Mackenzie's four-corner offense to perfection as Glenn could not regain the ball. Trailing 59-52, Glenn scored to make it 59-54 at the 5:15 mark but could get no closer as Mackenzie ran minutes off the clock at a time.

Tom Jurewicz, who scored 12 points, scored Glenn's only two points the last five minutes of the game when he sank two free throws at 3:25. Mackenzie's last six points came from the charity stripe as the hustling Rockets fouled in attempting to steal the ball from the stalling Stags.

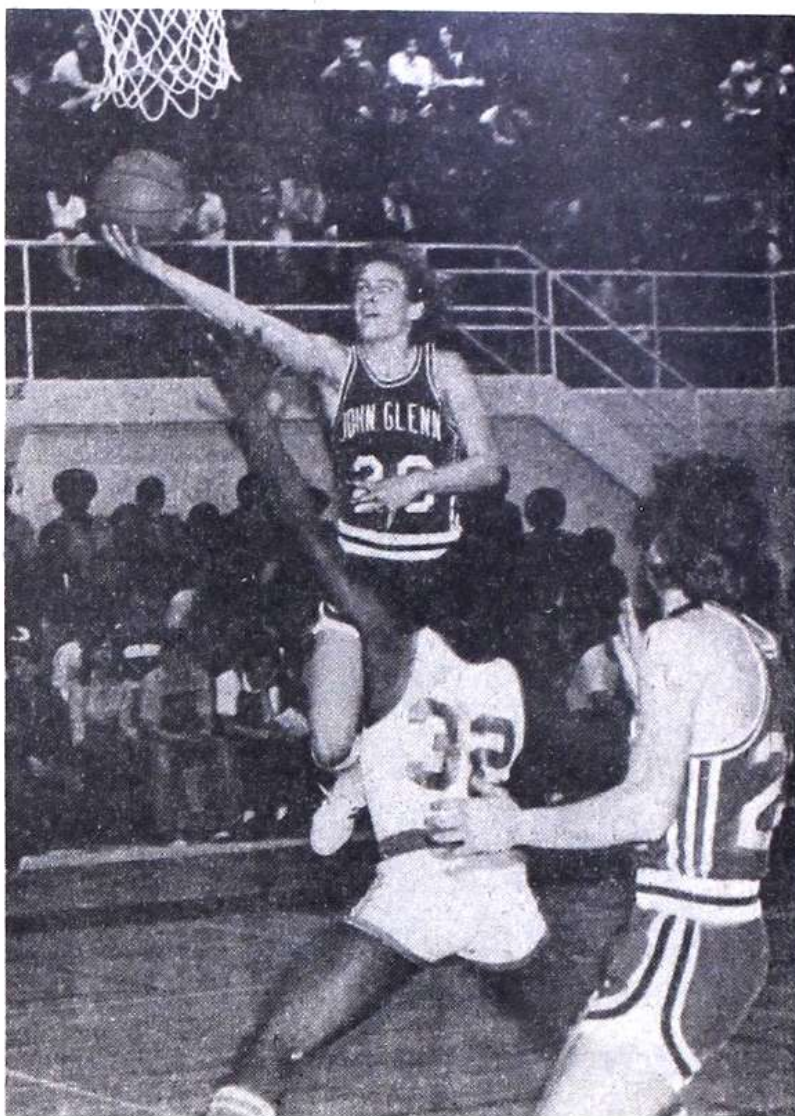

All-Stater Smith pumped in 12 field goals and all five of his free throws for a game-high 29 points. The five-11 guard deserves the rating. His teammate, 6-0 Steve Caldwell, was the only Stag in double figures with 17 points.

For Glenn, balanced scoring again was their strong point. Ed Bates and Daran Armstrong topped the Rockets with 13 points each, while Pat McBride and Tom Jurewicz each chipped in 12 points. Mitch Preston added six to complete Glenn's scoring.

"John Glenn has a very fine basketball team and they are very disciplined even though they are very quick," said Mackenzie coach Elbert Richmond after the game.

"I think they are as quick as any team we've played this year. The thing that turned it around is when we got the lead and forced them out of their zone defense," he said.

Cage acrobatics

Like the darin' young man on the flying trapeze, John Glenn's junior guard Daran Armstrong (20) flies past Steve Caldwell (32) of Detroit Mackenzie during Friday night's Class A regional championship at Livonia Franklin. Armstrong scored 13 points in a heroic attempt to derail the Detroit cagers who broke open a close game by outscoring their rivals 17-6 in the last period en route to a 69-56 victory.

Memorable winter for all of us

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

The iron ball came crashing down on Westland John Glenn and Inkster Cherry Hill, the area's two representatives in the Michigan High School Athletic Association's regional basketball tournaments.

John Glenn's memorable season ended Friday night at Livonia Franklin where a Detroit Mackenzie team broke loose in the fourth period to break open a close game and win despite the Rockets' stout hearts.

Meanwhile, in Detroit, a record-breaking Cherry Hill tried to overcome a jittery start against an intimidating and egalitarian Ecorse quintet which hung on to beat Dick McNally's Spartans.

And, as in the tale of the mystery goes, "Then there was none." But this season will long be remembered.

Several things have conspired to make the 1977-78 campaign an auspicious one: It was the first season that school districts have announced that they will not support athletic programs — or let booster clubs raise monies for that purpose — without the consent of the voters. If the voters turn down millages, as they did in so many districts, athletics probably won't get stays of execution.

It was a season of discontent for many athletic directors who were forced to schedule and reschedule games because of the record-winter and colds.

And, though the ordeal is over, few will disagree that the winter of 1977 should readily be erased from our minds.

Yes, Spring definitely is on its way.

And so is our All-Area Wrestling Team which was selected Sunday by some of the most knowledgeable wrestling coaches and personnel in the state.

Though the line-up of the teams aren't finalized as yet, there was some dialogue during the course of the selections that should be interesting to our readers.

Said Bob Lusk, John Glenn's veteran mentor: "It's interesting to note that the Wayne-Westland Community School system has one of the most successful wrestling programs in the state."

"And we really have to thank the school system and the residents for supporting such a program," Lusk added.

Injected John Wood, Wayne Memorial's rookie coach: "We have to also give a lot of credit to the junior high coaches who do an excellent job and send us kids who already are very well trained."

Personally, I've often wondered what would happen if the MHSAA would permit the Wayne-Westland schools to take an "All-Star" team to the state tournaments. If it didn't finish first, bet it would be near the top every time.

Speaking of wrestling, the Wayne "Wolfpack" held its annual banquet last week at the congenial environs of the Wayne American Legion Hall and Wood got a taste of what it's like facing the mothers and fathers and fans of the team.

In his first year as coach, Wood managed to maintain Wayne's winning tradition on the mats, repeat as Great Lakes 8 co-champs and capture a District title before finishing sixth in the state. Quite an accomplishment for a neophyte coach.

Assistant Coach Vince Wilhelm, a member of our elite All-Area club back in the early sixties, knows what it is to get on the mat and face an opponent, "one-on-one."

"Only a wrestler who has been in that type of situation really knows what it's all about," Wilhelm said. "And be proud that you have selected wrestling as a sport to compete."

Wayne's state champ, Chris Leverenz, was given a standing ovation when he was named the recipient of the Most Valuable Wrestler Award, while a devoted grappler by the name of Ken Hooper was picked as the recipient of the William Elliott Memorial Award.

One more thing before we wrap up the week — a reminder that the Franklin Junior High hockey team will be out for revenge on March 23 when they clash with their faculty team.

The two teams will meet at 7:30 p.m., March 23 on the ice at the Wayne Community Center and part of the proceeds will be donated to the American Cancer Society, according to Dan Schewe, who is quick to point out that the teachers have won the last two confrontations 8-6 and 11-9.

Admission is 50 cents for students and $1 for adults. Tickets can be purchased at the junior high school or at the community center. And for the price of a ticket fans will also see a figure skating exhibition.

German wrestlers coming to Belleville

The Germans are coming...

Invited by the National AAU, a German wrestling team from Saarland, West Germany, will tour the United States and one of their four stops will be at Belleville High School where they will meet a young team made up of area stars.

The Germans are due in town 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 21 at Belleville High. They'll meet an all-star team coached by Gerald Malacek.

The local AAU team is made up of the winners of a recent freestyle tournament held at Belleville on Sunday. Among the winners who will represent the AAU and their respective weight classes are as follows:

Jim Schultz of Plymouth (98), Chris Brad, Ann Arbor (106), Dennis Bergmooser, Trenton (115), Joe Justin, Belleville (123) and Tom Olson, Bay City (123), Ed Scully, Farmington (132) and Mark Ford, Belleville (132), Mark Comey, Bay City (143), Jeff Rose, Belleville (143) and Mike Johnson of Troy (154).

Also in the lineup are Bill Meyer of Westland (165), Jeff Bovia, Wayne (178), Chris Leverenz, Wayne (191) and heavyweight Mark DeWitt, Livonia.

There were more than 100 wrestlers who competed in Sunday's eliminations and 20 were selected to compete against the touring German team which was invited here by the AAU.

There is a $2 admission charge.

Glenn sets wrestling dates for 4th clinic

Four of the top high school wrestling coaches in the state will be among the speakers at the Fourth Annual Rocket Wrestling Clinic to be held from March 20 to March 23 at Westland John Glenn, 36106 Marquette.

The clinic is open to all coaches — high school and junior high as well as students. Registration will begin at 6 p.m. on Wednesday (March 20) and will be accepted in the area immediately outside the gym. All participants must have the proper registration card to enter each session.

The complete cost for the four-day clinic is $15. Coaches will be admitted free of cost when five or more boys register from their school.

The clinic staff will include Mike Rodriguez, whose Shamrocks at Detroit Catholic Central recently captured the Class A state title. Rodriguez' topic will cover "Mat Wrestling."

Also, wrestlers will head Ernie Gillum of Ann Arbor Huron High, (Takedown situations); Don Esterline, Adrian High School (Pinning Combinations); and Dick Cook, Farmington Harrison High, (Sequence to Wrestling Success — Single leg, stand-up and leg wrestling).

For further information about the clinic, please contact Robert A. Lusk, head wrestling coach at John Glenn High School (728-1800, extension 73).

'The Force' deserts Spartans

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

When the Spartans needed the gleaming streak of light the most, the Force deserted them.

In the war of stars, an egalitarian Ecorse quintet outlasted an erratic Cherry Hill Friday night to capture the Class B regional basketball championship at the University of Detroit High before a raging capacity crowd.

The Spartans looked as if they forgot everything they knew in the first eight minutes and spotted the Red Raiders a 20-8 lead. They came back to tie the game at 50-all in the fourth period but never got the go-ahead baskets, though they got the ball back a couple of times via turnovers but reciprocated by committing mental errors.

The Spartans rose from the ashes of the first period thanks to all-stater Tyrone Jordan, Floyd Simmons and Don Calloway whose baskets facilitated the rally.

Simmons started the fire when he scored the first basket of the second period, whittling the Red Raiders' lead to 20-10, then George Johnson canned a pair of free throws and though Lance Ector and Reggie Oliver came up with back-to-back Ecorse baskets, the Spartans appeared over their first period shakes as Jordan rattled the nets with a long jumper and Calloway came up with a steal and a basket, followed by a drive-in layup to cut the Raiders' lead to 24-19. That's when Ecorse Coach Ken Jackson asked for a time out.

I've got it

Cherry Hill's Lou Gregory (at right) sweeps this rebound while teammate Tyrone Jordan (24), also airborne, watched. Though the Spartans had gained control of the boards after the first period a disastrous 20-8 start proved their undoing Friday night against Ecorse in the Class B regional championships at the University of Detroit High.

Lillie's best time earns 100-yard butterfly championship

State champ

While Rick Kogelschatz almost performed a miracle, teammate Scott Lillie did — the Cherry Hill senior captured the Class B state swim title in the butterfly.

Lillie turned in a dazzling 52.6 for the 100-yard butterfly at the state finals to claim the gold medal in competition held over the weekend at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

Though it was Lillie's best time, it was four-tenths of a second off the state record established a year ago by the then junior, Kogelschatz. Kogelschatz, who hasn't trained since January 15 when he came down with a severe sinus infection, finished fifth in his specialty.

"Rick obviously wasn't 100 percent for the meet," commented Cherry Hill Coach Jerry Pawloski. "In fact he was less than 85 percent and he still managed to earn a fifth place medal and retain his all-state status."

Not only did Rick earn a fifth in the butterfly, he duplicated that finish in the 50-yard freestyle where he turned in with a 22.9.

"It's really remarkable what Rick did," continued Pawloski. "There are a few people around who can enter a pool without training for more than 2½ months and produce those results.

"And, one also has to applaud Scott Lillie's performance not only in the butterfly, but for what he did in the relays," the Spartan coach added.

Compiling 83 points, Cherry Hill finished fifth in the Class B state standings. East Grand Rapids retained its state title for the second year.

It was the third year in a row that the Inkster-based high school swim team had wound up among the top five teams in the state. The Spartans were runner-up a year ago and a healthy Kogelschatz just may have been the difference this year...but that is now all speculation.

Cherry Hill had the third best Class B 200-yard medley relay team in the state with Lillie, Tracy Hissong, Kogelschatz and Eric Wolhfeil who combined for 1:43.3.

The Spartans also finished fifth with their freestyle relay team that was made up of Wolhfeil, Gary Schuler, Mike Kulwicki and Lillie.

Schuler became the fastest 500-yard freestylist in Cherry Hill history when he turned in a 5:02 to finish eighth in the state and earn a medal.

SCOTT LILLIE

Here comes Mr. Jordan

Tyrone Jordan (24) whose "hot hands" brought the Cherry Hill Spartans back from the ashes of the first period against Ecorse, goes high in the air to nail this rebound in Friday's Class B Regional basketball championship game at the University of Detroit High.

Spartans fall

An Ecorse turnover gave the ball back to Calloway who made good use of it, then Johnson tossed in a basket and followed up with a pair of free throws to put the Spartans ahead for the first time in the game 25-24 with 3:42 remaining in the half.

Ecorse pulled away to a 33-26 lead with one minute left, but Johnson again made good on a pair of free throws and Jordan pumped in a couple of jumpers to bring the Spartans within one of catching their rivals at the half.

Trailing by one, 33-32, as the second and what proved to be the last half of the season for the Spartans got underway, Coach Dick McNally's troops kept the outcome of the game in doubt until the final minute.

The irrepressible Red Raiders refused to quit as Suttles and Oliver offset Simmons' basket to keep the regional champ ahead 39-34 with 4:48 to go in the third period. Jordan then drilled in two more baskets to cut into Ecorse's lead 40-38, but Reggie Grandison's three-point play widened the margin 43-38 with 2:17 remaining. Jordan again replied, but Calloway missed a layup and with 1:21 left, the Raiders still had a three-point cushion, 43-40. That's how the period ended.

The mistake-filled fourth period didn't bring any relief to the Spartans who missed numerous chances to grab the lead away. Barnett put the Raiders up by six when he completed a three-point play (46-40) and though the Spartans caught their rivals at 50-all on baskets by Johnson, Calloway, Tim Corden and Simmons they threw the game away when an Ecorse turnover with 2:05 left paved the way to a flurry of Spartan mistakes including a bad pass and steps. When Oliver cashed in on a pair of free throws, Ecorse had the lead for good and the regional crown.

"Obviously I was very disappointed in the game because I still believe we were a better ball club than Ecorse," said McNally. "But I'm not taking anything away from Ecorse they played an excellent ball game against us. We also lost this thing at the foul line where we hit only 10 of 21."

However, the Spartans compiled a 20-4 won-lost record, the best in the schools history. And they also set a scoring record for the year with 1,911, eclipsing the previous mark of 1,528.

Johnson led the Spartans in scoring and shared the game high of 15 with Ecorse's Barnett, while Jordan finished his prep career with 14 and Simmons chipped in 12.

Glenn ousted

In the other locker room, Glenn coach Davis had the highest praise for his Rocket team.

"I think we surprised a few people out there tonight," he said. "Our boys gave a real good display. I felt we could run with them and we did, but we just didn't make the shots."

Davis added, "Their guard, Keith Smith, was all they said he was, but I'm as proud as I can be of our boys."

Mackenzie hit 27 of 53 shots while Glenn was 21 of 52. At the free throw line, the Stags were 15 of 16 and the Rockets were 14-25. Mackenzie outrebounded the Rockets by a margin of 34-19.

Glenn finished with a 19-5 record for the season.

It was kind of ironic how Plymouth Salem was put out of this year's regional state basketball playoffs at Livonia Franklin.

First, the Rocks' coach, Fred Thomann was omitted from the program by the printing machine. Then his talented cagers were eliminated by a precision machine -- the John Glenn Rockets.

How the impressive Thomann -- both in stature and statistics -- could be left off the program is unusual, but it was just a mistake. However, there was no mistake the way Gordon Davis' Rockets flashed to a stunning 67-63 victory over the favored Rocks last week in the regional tournament.

Salem rocked the Rockets, 68-60, earlier in the regular season and were a solid five-point favorite by most newspaper scribes. But Glenn didn't overhear the sports scribes and battled the Rocks all the way to win one of the most thrilling games of the cage season.

Darin' Daran Armstrong, Glenn's mini-magician, was off and running in guiding his team to a 20-19 first quarter lead. The slick ball-handler was all over the court, drilling in five baskets and assisting on others as his team looked extra-sharp.

However, Salem's talented guard Rich Hewlett, who led all scorers with 22 points, and Tom Ellinghausen, who added 13, geared the Rocks' attack as they assumed a 35-32 halftime lead.

Salem, with high-scoring 6-foot-5 Ellinghausen shutout, still managed to cling to a 46-44 lead after three periods.

Glenn, which had scored just 24 points in the middle two periods, exploded on its fast break and 60 percent shooting average to sweep into the lead and hold on for its thrilling victory, 67-63.

Glenn hit 27 of 45 shots for 60 percent, while Salem was hot also, with a 53 percent average from the floor.

"I'm just so proud of these guys," said an emotionally-drained Davis in the locker room. "They don't know how to quit."

Davis said Salem plays good defense and he knew Glenn would have to spread the Rocks out if Glenn was to score enough to win. "We knew we had to run and with Daran (Armstrong) and Doug (Martin) moving the ball so well, we were able to penetrate and score."

Armstrong led five Glenn scorers in double figures as he pumped in 14 points, center Tom Jurewicz tapped in 13, Pat McBride and Mitch Preston each had 12 and Martin 10 in the victory.

Martin was particularly effective, coming off the bench to replace Ed Bates when the latter got into foul trouble and scored all of his points in the last half.

"We couldn't stop their outside shooting like we did the first game, and they were able to run on us," said Thomann, the 6-foot-9 Salem coach who has amassed a spectacular record in his six years at Plymouth's helm.

How could any program overlook the personable Thomann, who was an outstanding center himself at Taylor Center a few years ago? After being 15-6 his first year at Salem, he followed with successive marks of 21-3, 22-3, 20-2, 17-5, and finished 20-3 this year.

U-D retires Long's cage uniform

Senior co-captains Johnny Long and Terry Tyler have been the playing-floor catalysts in the basketball turnaround at the University of Detroit, just as much as Athletic Director Dick Vitale and his staff have provided the coaching and the promotional support in the renaissance of basketball at the University of Detroit.

With this in mind, Vitale announced that the uniforms of Long, a former all-state and all-area cager from Romulus High and now the school's all-time top scorer, and Tyler who prepped at Detroit Northwestern, will be formally retired.

The ceremonies for this memorable occasion occurred prior to the Marquette game which the Titans lost in a close 80-77 battle.

Uniform numbers '50' (Long) and 44 (Tyler) will not be seen again at U-D after this season. They join all-time great Dave DeBusschere's 22 and player-coach-athletic director Bob Calihan's 17 as the only retired numbers in basketball at the school in more than 70 years of athletic history.

DeBusschere's number was retired at the close of his career. Calihan, in whose honor the U-D Memorial Building was renamed last October, is having his number formally retired now also.

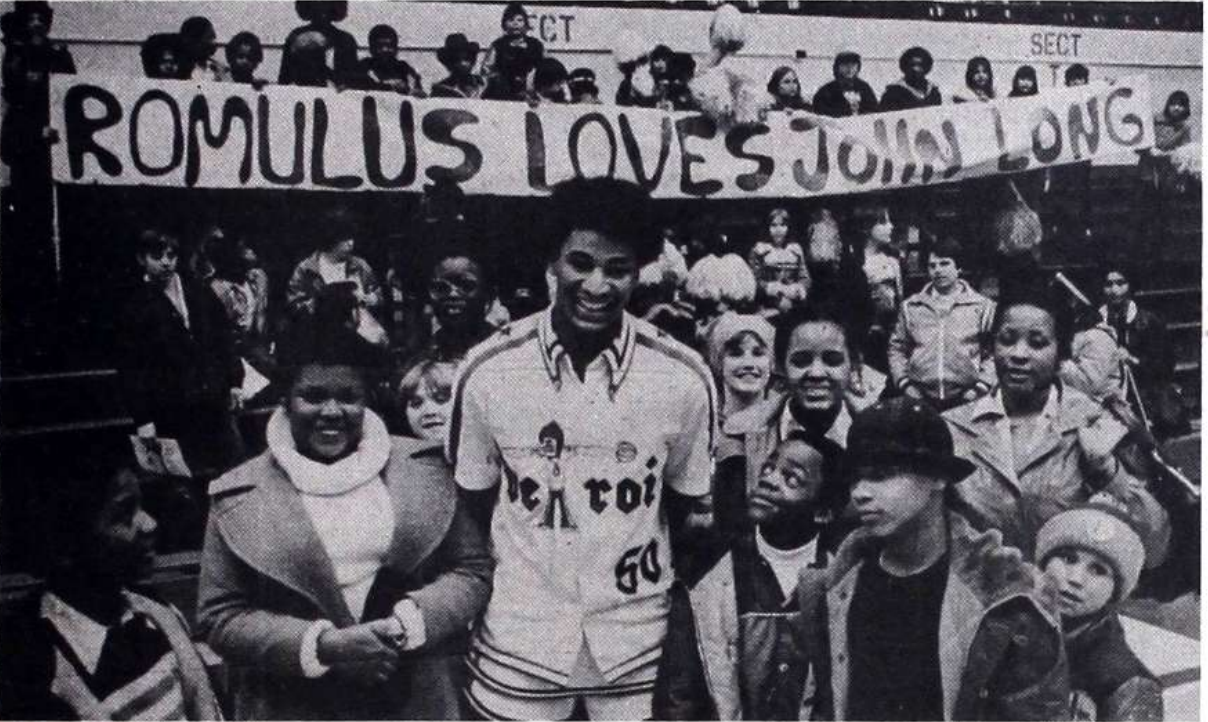

Said Vitale in making the announcement about Long and Tyler: "These two exciting senior players are very special. They have turned not only basketball around, but also helped turn around the fortunes of the whole University of Detroit. They are a symbol of a new spirit at U-D that is reflected in an enrollment turnaround, increased donations, increased media publicity in all areas as well as athletic success.

"They are very deserving of this high honor and I was certainly most pleased to make this recommendation to our athletic board which concurred in this matter."

The uniforms were displayed in the arena after the Marquette game and will be on permanent display in a section of the building.

Long scored 16 points against the Warriors to finish the regular season with 2,134 career points, having broken DeBusschere's record of 1985 points in mid-February at Western Michigan University. Incidentally, he also holds the school record for career field goals of 918 and had a string of 74 straight games scoring in double figures.

Romulus loves Johnny Long

Flanked by fans from Romulus and standing behind a sign that states, "Romulus loves Johnny Long", University of Detroit cage star, Johnny Long, pauses to be photographed with this group of avid fans preceding a recent Titan game. Long, who led Romulus to district and regional championships, capped his collegiate career by breaking former Titan great, Dave DeBusschere's scoring record. For his accomplishments and contributions to U of D basketball and athletics, in general, Long's jersey "No. 50" was retired. He became only the fourth player in the college's 70 year history to be so honored.

Showdown looms in Over 30 hockey league frontrunners

Four Seasons and Extra Point Bar have a date next week and after their meeting the Wayne-Wetland Over 30 Hockey League will have its first champ.

Four Seasons moved to the top of the hill recently, pulling down the barnmen in the process. The rematch between the two frontrunners should be a cliffhanger. If both Four Seasons and Extra Point win their respective games on March 5, they will meet on the ice at the Wayne Arena at 8:30 p.m., March 12.

Meanwhile, Extra Point rebounded from its upset loss to Jack's by pounding Johnson Carbonic 12-0. Goalie Jerry Wysocki recorded his first shutout of the campaign as the barnmen supported him with a seven-goal burst in the second period to blow the contest wide open.

Dave Zajac popped in four goals to lead the fired up Extra Point skaters while Ray Erickson added a pair. Six other E.P. players tallied.

Four Seasons received its usual outstanding goaltending from Jim Gibson in edging 52nd Show Bar, 4-2. A four-goal spurt in the second period proved to be the difference in the final meeting of these two teams.

George Motts notched his first two goals of the season to give the winners an early lead in the second period. Norm Beasley and Larry Kaifesh then picked up short-handed goals late in the period to ice the game.

The 52nd contingent came into the game as the highest scoring team in the league, but Ron Wojewski's two goals were the only ones the losers could muster.

In a high-scoring affair, Brock Builders and the Tastee Freez fought to a 6-all tie. The Freezers pulled their goalie and scored two goals in the last minute and half to earn a tie.

Mo Paquette led the Freezer attack with a pair of goals, while Dave Fishwich also tallied twice, including the decisive goal.

Six Broch Builders made it into the scoring column. Ken Beal sparked the offense with a couple of assists and a goal.

Ron Mullendore also carded his first shutout of the season as Huron Valley Steel blasted Jack's Sports Center by a 10-0 score. The winners got four first period goals and never looked back.

Terry Carley and Don Morris each had the coveted three-goal hat trick to lead the Oilers. Mike Villemure added a pair of goals while Ken Carter had three assists.

Thank goodness the best things in America never change.

Sonar units

By SAM GRISSOM
Outdoor Writer

It was one of those picture post card type of days. You know the kind I mean. Warm, slight breeze blowing, sky a bright clear blue, big white pillow shaped clouds, an occasional seagull flying overhead.

I'd spent all winter dreaming of just such a day. The only thing wrong was that the fish just weren't there. We had trolled from the mouth of the Platte River down to Frankfort without marking a single fish.

It was late May and Buck Ryder and myself had tried everything in the book to no avail. The traffic on the radio made us feel a little better. No one else was having any luck either. Then finally, laying right on the bottom, the sonar unit showed us the inverted vees that indicated fish.

We started lowering the downriver weights to the bottom and then the screen was suddenly empty again. It appeared as if the fish were lying in the narrow band at the edge of a drop off.

We turned the boat until we marked fish again, then carefully watched the sonar screen so we could parallel the edge of the dropoff. For some reason the fish were hard to locate that day. They were just as hard to catch. We finally managed to take two fish, but had we not had the sonar unit we would have never found them.

Some folks, particularly if they don't own one, frown on using a sonar unit. They claim that it is making fishing to electrical, to mechanical. In actual use, the sonar unit is no greater aid to the fisherman than the scope is to the hunter. It helps, but it can't do the job for you.

Basically a sonar unit for fishing is the same as the old war movies. Of course if you were to put one of those units in your boat it would soon be on the bottom because of all of the weight.

Thanks to modern science, transistors and solid state circuitry, the sonar unit is down to a few pounds.

What a sonar unit does is to send out sound waves and listen for the echo to bounce back off of a solid object beneath it. It also measures the time that the sound wave takes to bounce back and displays the results.

In the simplest terms, a sonar unit consists of a transmitter, receiver, transducer, and a result indicator.

A coaxial cable carries electrical impulses to and from the indicator. The transmitter sends alternating electrical impulses to the transducer where it is converted into inaudible high frequency sound waves. The transducer also receives the returning echo, converts it back into electrical impulses that go to the indicating display.

The sound wave cone that the transducer produces is roughly like a beam of light from a flashlight; the further out it goes, the greater the area of coverage.

Five types of sonar units are available on the sports market. Each has its own merit, and the price of each is dependent upon the type of display indicator employed and the amount of accuracy maintained.

The first type is the meter display. It employs a dial or gauge graduated in feet to indicate the depth. They are excellent for the ice fisherman because of the low cost and small size, but for the serious fishermen, knowing just depth of the water beneath him often isn't enough.

A second type is the digital display unit. Again the only information it gives you is the water depth. The cost is higher than the meter display units, but having a large easy to read numeral indicating the depth can be a plus.

They are excellent investments for the sailor and I plan on adding one to my boat auxiliary unit. There are times when it might be nice to not be able to see the fish that lie beneath your boat, especially when they aren't biting.

The third and most common is the rotating neon tube sonar. This is the unit that made sonar popular and is one that most people call a flasher. It will give you the bottom depth, the type of bottom, and if you watch it close enough it will mark fish. Some of these units have an alarm system built into them that you can preset for a particular depth.

The fourth type is where you start to get into the big money. The graph paper recording unit. There are two types, straight line recorders and revolving markers. Instead of merely showing you depth, they draw a picture of what's below you. A graduated roll of paper moves between two spools. As it advances past the screen, a marking needle will draw a picture of the sound wave deflection that is taking place beneath the transducer.

While not being a photographic image, a little practice will allow you to interpret the images on the screen with surprising accuracy.

The price on this type of sonar will range from $200 to $900. On the better straight line recorders, you can even discriminate objects lying directly on the bottom, a feature that is very useful when fishing for bottom hugging lake trout.

The final type of unit is the cathod ray tube sonar. The most expensive of all the sport fishing sonar units; it costs around $1,500. The result image that it produces is similar to the graph paper recorders but it uses no papers.

The prices of sonar units vary from as little as $30 to as much as the $1,500 figure. They all will help and can help you to find more fish. What they won't do, however, is catch them for you.

After much scrimping and saving I managed to purchase a straight line graph recorder that is one of the best on the market.

However, even with my lures dragging right through the middle of a large school of fish, some days I just can't catch anything.

I think the box that the sonar came in would be a better fishing aid to use on those days.

Wayne seeks gal softballers

The ever-increasing interest in girls softball has caused the Wayne Parks and Recreation Department to increase the number of leagues for its summer program.

Recreation officials announced this week that they will form leagues for three age groups, instead of the customary two: there will be a mini league (ages 8 to 10), midi league (ages 11 to 13) and maxi league (ages 14 to 18).

Players must be residents of Wayne in order to compete in the leagues and they may sign up at the Community Center.

For further information, please contact the Wayne Parks and Recreation Offices at 721-7400.

RUSTPROOFING.
EITHER YOU HAVE IT OR YOU DON'T

Car makers don't build the rustproof car and no car dealer can deliver the real rustproofing you get with the exclusive Ziebart process.

Don't be misled by some sweeping references to "anti-corrosion methods" used in building some 1977 cars. Real rust-proofing must be done after the car is built. And it must cover every critical area inside and under the car. That's the proven Ziebart method. There are no shortcuts. That's why your Ziebart Dealer uses nine different patented spray tools to reach rust-prone areas. That's why he uses a rustproofing sealant that actually penetrates welded seams where rust can start. Your Ziebart Dealer can deliver a rustproofed 1977 car because that's his business—and he knows it. Call him.

NOBODY!
SPENDS MORE — ON THEIR USED CARS THAN WE DO.

And we want you to know that we won't sell any used car that the BOSS himself would not drive. We spend more money to make sure that everything on the used car is 'road ready'. We don't just fix the obvious things, like chipped paint or bald tires....we look for things that might go wrong in the future.

26 YEARS OF SELLING USED CARS IN THE SAME SPOT IS PROOF...WE ARE BETTER.

IN WEST DEARBORN.....ACROSS FROM JACOBSON'S

Around the world

Bride's attire has ethnic flavor

The "something new is something old in this year's wedding planning. Old-fashioned romance is the key to the 1978 bridal fashions and festivities, from flower-brimmed hats to petal-strewn aisles, layers of lace and shimmering satin to elegant morning coats and tuxedos of Byronic grace and style.

That's what to expect here in the United States. But what about half way around the world? Have you ever wondered what a wedding ceremony is like in Japan?

In contrast to the wedding ceremony as it is known here, with its manifest ebullience and gaiety, solemnity and quietude set the tone of the traditional Japanese wedding. And rightly so, in particular for the bride whose demeanor throughout the ceremony is one of a downward gaze showing little emotion.

The traditional bridal attire is very beautiful and extravagant, representing upwards of thousands of dollars in cost. Traditionally, the bride is heavily powdered so that she has a white almost mask-like appearance.

In olden days, a young woman wore her hair long and uncurled, and it was done up in the traditional elaborate high hair-do. Nowadays a wig takes care of that tedious chore.

One of the concessions that has not been made is the wearing of the white silk cloth around the hair-do, symbolizing the young woman's total devotion to her husband. The bridal costume entails several layers of undergarments, and the gown itself often is very exquisite silk brocade, embroidered with silver and gold threads. It also is on many beautiful colors.

Around the waist is the broad sash—obi—again of very heavy brocade often woven with much silver and gold threading. This is tied back very elaborately and high in the back.

Least known among the peoples of the world are the inhabitants of Northern Finland at the Arctic Circle. It is believed that the Finnish Lapps roamed as nomads across Russia and Finland as far back as the last Ice Age, 10 millenniums ago.

The traditional Lapp bridal attire is always dark blue, with many shawls tied over the bride's shoulders. Usually, the top one is white, taking the place of the veil.

Women guests at the ceremony wear white shawls, also, as is customary on all solemn occasions. The number of shawls worn by the bride is kind of a status symbol.

Lapp custom gives the bride a chance to change her mind about her intended husband, right up to the last minute, practically to the "I do".

One ancient Lapp custom that surely would have little or no appeal even to adventurous North Americans is one still followed by newlyweds at the Arctic Circle. The bridal couple is required to spend their wedding night outside their hut. This isn't difficult to take in the summer, when the weather is balmy, clear and delightful. But, in the winter, this means the nuptial night is spent in the bare snow.

Diamonds 'brighten' engagements

Thanks to Agnes Sorel

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Diamonds are a girl's best friend."

If that old adage is true—and it is for many girls—the members of the fairer sex owe a debt of gratitude to Agnes Sorel, a beauty of the 15th century.

Because it was the attractive Agnes who took diamonds from the exclusive use by men and made it fashionable and alluring for women to wear them also. And it was way back in 1444 that she made her place in history, and in the place of women's hearts, according to the Jewelry Industry Council.

Prior to that, history tells us that diamonds were considered strictly for masculine wear. Kings and noblemen, believing diamonds' unmatched hardness gave men extra strength and courage, wore them into battle.

Women, with the exception of a few liberated royal ladies, didn't wear them at all.

But then, along came Agnes, the daughter of a poor but noble French family. Through family connections, she was appointed a lady-in-waiting to the royal court of Charles VII while still in her teens.

This was the same Charles for whom Joan of Arc had fought and died some years before. Joan was a heroine of Agnes, who idolized the martyr's quest to free France from the English and also had an eye on Charles.

Despite the fact she was a promising beauty in her teens, Agnes could not catch the attention of the king because he was constantly surrounded by beautiful women.

But her chance came a few years later when she was 22 years old, according to history.

When an important royal ball was announced, she was determined to be noticed by the king. She borrowed all the diamonds she could from her male relatives and took them to a Parisian jeweler to fashion into a dazzling necklace.

To highlight the sparkling necklace, Agnes chose a lustrous low-cut gown that revealed her graceful neck, creamy white shoulders and comely curves.

When Agnes gracefully entered the ballroom, every eye seemed riveted on her every movement.

As the royal page announced her presence, the king looked up and gave an appreciative smile.

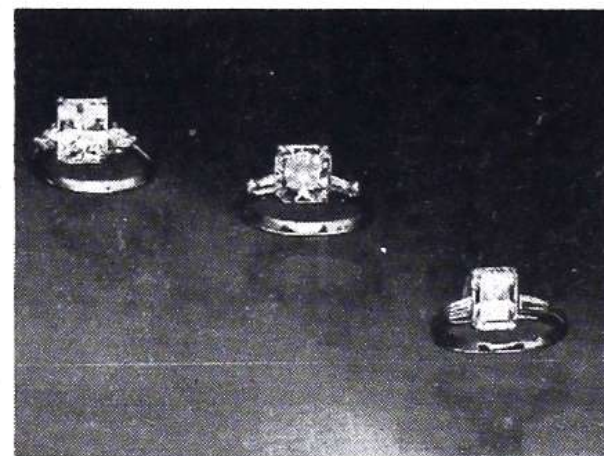

Whether it was the flashing diamonds or the blooming beauty of the young maiden that caught the king's eye is not sure, but he eagerly beckoned her to his side.

And she walked into his life to stay.

Her lovely figure, chestnut hair, deep blue eyes and flawless complexion caused him to nickname her the court's "Dame de Beaute" (Lady of Beauty). He later built an impressive palace for her—the Chateau de Beaute, near Paris.

Rising fast through her new-found prominence with the king, Agnes was elevated to social prestige and became a style-setter—popularizing the custom of women wearing diamonds.

Agnes Sorel was the first officially recognized king's mistress and was given official status because of it. However, she was more than just a "pretty face" and remembered the goal of her idol—Joan of Arc—to push the British out of Burgundy.

She is credited with helping and inspiring Charles to do just that by not only providing encouragement, but cold hard cash as well, arranging loans from important merchants to help finance the king's armies.

Although Agnes remained the king's favorite and bore him four lovely daughters during her lifetime, her death is still shrouded in mystery.

Some historians believe she died in 1450 while giving birth to a child, while others hint she may have been poisoned. Just who may have poisoned her is unknown, but rumors include a host of people including the king's own son, who resented his father's mistress usurping his mother's place.

Whatever the cause of Agnes Sorel's death, she remains a national heroine to this day in France where she is honored for her beauty, fidelity and patriotism.

But women the world over will remember her best as the beautiful girl who made it fashionable for the fairer sex to wear glittering diamonds.

Bride's gown: Romantic, feminine

Certainly the most delightful part of planning a wedding for the bride is selecting her gown — the outfit she will wear as all eyes are on her during that very special day of days.

Women planning spring and summer weddings are shopping for their dresses right now, and the fashions they are seeing are very romantic and feminine, according to salon owners in the Western Wayne County area.

Wedding gowns this spring emphasize the romantic touch that is sweeping the entire fashion industry. The severe lines and harsh fabrics are gone, and the soft feminine look is very much in.

Victorian styles, the remnants of the romantic era, are the ones chosen by brides this year.

Lots of chiffon is being shown in salons throughout the area, giving dresses the soft look rather than the crisp and uncomfortable style. The bride is graceful and touchable in her dress.

According to the manager of one popular bridal salon, the pleated look is going to be "in" this spring. Pleated skirts, sleeves, even pleated bodices tucked with lace, are being shown on the warm weather dresses.

The skirts are full, they move with the bride as she walks. Sleeves on the spring and summer gowns are short, with a number of different styles capable of giving this effect. Cap sleeves are being shown, and even more popular is the ruffle at the shoulder, creating a type of cap ruffle sleeve. Another effect is created by a flounce sleeve, or angel sleeve, particularly good with chiffon.

Eyelet will be popular this year as it was last year, say area bridal consultants. Cotton eyelet is being shown, but even more popular than that is polyester sheer eyelet with embroidery through it.

Silk venice lace, again with the soft, silky look as opposed to crisp cotton variety, is very popular.

Brides will always have their veils, say area bridal shop owners, although there is some emphasis this spring and summer on flowers in the hair, particularly for bridal attendants.

Both the fingertip veil, and the cathedral or chapel veil, are traditionally favorite styles. Veil choice always depends on the style of gown, so the two are coordinated.

And no matter what the season, the bride's height has a lot to do with her choice of both veil and gown. A shorter girl will often pick the fingertip veil. She doesn't want to be buried in a long veil. She will also avoid a lot of skirt ruffles and will tend to stay with smooth lines in her skirt.

Picture hats are again popular this year for brides and bridesmaids. Veils can be attached to picture hats to create a different look while staying with traditional veiling. Some new hat-veils also have the old fashioned "blusher" net that is falls from the hat over the bride's face as she walks down the aisle.

Bridal consultants are noticing that the age of brides is changing. Women are a bit older when they are in the market for their bridal gown. And this age difference makes a big difference in the gown selection of the bride-to-be. The women are more mature, they know what they want, and they do not necessarily have an anxious mother at their elbow. The bride in her early or mid-twenties will choose a "mature" gown, without too many ruffles or fuss that would tend to make her look too young.

Another difference between the bride of today and of years ago is the freedom given today's woman in fitting her wedding to her own preferences. Tradition has its place, but the bride can pretty much do her own thing in every area — from gown selection to wedding invitations, to wedding vows.

This year's choices for bridesmaids are just as numerous as for the bride. Popular colors are sea spray (an aqua blue green color), apricot and other pastels.

According to bridal salon owners, the trend is definitely to outfitting bridesmaids in gowns that they can wear again. Printed cottons are being shown this year, as well as halter dresses, or sleeveless gowns with spaghetti straps. I have a blouson top, cape. Many times these gowns will have a blouson top, cape or shawl over them to be worn at church, but that can be removed later at the reception.

Bridal parties are shopping and ordering now for their June, July and August weddings. The bride-to-be must remember that dresses must be ordered and fitted, and this process takes several weeks, even months.

So now is the time to think of that warm summer day, when it's your day, your wedding day.

Spread the 'word'

You've decided it's time to tell the whole world the good news, but how? The diamond ring tells part of the story, but what about the details?

For brides-to-be and new Mrs. who want to share that "special day" with others, Associated Newspapers offers bridal questionnaires, as well as engagement forms for announcing the "start of it all".

When filling out the forms, we ask that names—first and last—be printed to avoid misspellings and that the proper title's of places of employment schools and club and social affiliations be used.

We also ask that addresses be followed by the city and state.

Telephone numbers should be included with the information in case a question does arise.

Pictures will be printed with engagement announcements and wedding stories. For the former, we prefer wallet size photos, however, larger studio photos are acceptable.

Wedding photos can be of either the bride alone, or the bridal couple, and must be of professional quality.

Candid snapshots for weddings and engagements are not acceptable because they do not contain the sharpness and contrast needed for reproduction.

Engagement and bridal forms can be picked up at our Belleville office, located at 116 Fourth St., Belleville, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., or at our Wayne office, located at 3540 Michigan Avenue, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

We also will mail forms, if a telephone request is made. For further information contact our Enterprise-Roman Suburban Living Editor Lee Smith at 697-9191, or ANP News Editor Sue McDonald at 729-400.

The Cordoba

Men's attire has European styling

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

For those males about to take that fateful step and tie the nuptial knot, European styling is in for formal wedding wear this year, both for the spring-summer and fall-winter seasons.

That's the latest word from one of metropolitan Detroit's largest volume dealers in formal men's wear.

According to the firm, this year's bridegroom more than likely will have the European look in his formal tuxedo, with its tight-fitting jacket, slightly roped shoulders and peaked lapels, flared trousers with a leaner look and adjustable waist band, and the increasingly popular vest.

Also incorporated in this year's European look are matching colors for almost every piece of the entire ensemble — coat, pants, vest and shirt. Ruffles on the shirt, under the collar and also on the sleeves, have come strongly into vogue.

Two of the more popular styles for the spring-summer season this year are the Seville and the Cordoba which come in shades of white, pastels of varying colors, ice blue, mint green and a newer hue called ginger (soft tan). In contrast with past years, the edging on the jacket and stripes on trousers are oftentimes done with tone-on-tone, wherein the same color edging is used as in the entire suit.

This year, the Seville comes in a new color — dark gray — which is proving quite fashionable with bridegrooms. Black tuxedos have become increasingly rare in weddings.

While the Seville features a jacket length more in keeping with that associated with a normal suit coat, the Cordoba comes with squared-off tails in back and a waist length front. This new creation is worn with the ruffled shirt and cummerbund and is easily recognized by its fine European tailoring.

Flexibility is the key word with the Cordoba look as bridegrooms now choose this style of formal wedding wear for all seasons, rather than confining it to spring and summer.

A leading men's wear store owner explained that the groom in many formal weddings "tends to wear this style, while his men are attired in the Seville look in matching colors."

Even the ring bearer in many of today's weddings is outfitted in the same style of formal wear as the groomsmen, while many dads are now taking it upon themselves to "get dressed up" for that once-in-a-lifetime occasion.

With the arrival of the fall-winter season, the same European influence will be in fashion, with some jackets sporting a satin (faillie) lapel. Bow tie and vest of matching faillie accents the entire ensemble for this time of year, with favorite colors being dark green and dark brown.

Making a bold move this year into the fall-winter season is the Croyden, which features a rounded cutaway coat highly reminiscent of the traditional morning

Sew your own gown

Planning can make it a rewarding experience

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

So you can sew and want to show off your creativity on your wedding day. It's a terrific idea, if you take a few minutes to plan and consider the task before you.

Sewing a dress may be a simple task to the experienced seamstress, but a bridal gown may pose problems never before encountered.

Modern technology has given today's bride a wide selection of materials that can be used in wedding gowns beyond the traditional bridal satin. Synthetics, knits, cotton polyesters and linens are showing up more and more at weddings ... and not just among the guests.

But the industrious bride-to-be should consider not only the type of material she wants, but also the style and fit of the pattern. A wise seamstress, who had no formal training, once told me that classes aren't necessary to learn to sew, just take your time and do it right. She should know, she's made two wedding gowns and several bridesmaids' gowns in the past seven years.

The first step in making a wedding gown is deciding on a pattern. Remember in making such a selection put becomingness before fashion. Sketches in a pattern book may not look the same after many hours of tender loving labor.

In selecting the pattern decide if it emphasizes your good points, but make sure that that emphasis doesn't call attention to a bad point.

Also decide what your figure style is and consider the purpose of the gown. When you're ready to select the fabric, decide if it is suitable for the style you chose and the purpose.

And if you're between pattern sizes, buy the smaller one and enlarge wherever necessary.

Because some materials, such as satin and velvet show sticking marks, it's wise to cut out the bodice of your gown in an old sheet or a piece of muslin to figure out what alterations, if any, are necessary. It may be an inconvenience at the time and slow down the sewing process, but it could guarantee a better fitting, better looking bridal ensemble.

In considering the different materials, weight the pros and cons. While cottons are versatile, durable, comfortable and easy to care for, they wrinkle, tend to shrink and soil easily. Linens are cooler, more lustrous, dry faster and are absorbant, but are more expensive, likely to wrinkle and difficult to launder.

When you're ready to cut out the pattern, observe which pieces must be placed on a fold and which pieces must be cut singly, such as for the right and left side of the body.

If the fabric has a nap, pile or 1-way design or is of satin, the top of the pattern pieces must all face the top of the fabric. Remember to cut carefully and accurately and be sure that all the pattern pieces are placed on the grainline.

If you're using material made from thermoplastics, such as nylon, dacron, orlon or combinations of those and natural fibers, cut with sharp scissors and use fine, sharp pins. Stitch slow and don't pull the fabric. Generally, the tension for such materials should be looser than for natural fibers.

If a satin is your choice for your wedding gown, you'll have to decide what effect you want. Hold up two ends of the fabric and look down it. One end will appear darker than the other. Decide whether you want a lighter or darker effect.

Since pins will mark such fabric, place all pins within the seam allowances wherever possible. Pin holes will show less if placed along the lengthwise grain of the fabric.

Satin tends to "squirm" around under a pattern when cutting, so place a row of pins on either side of the cutting line. Pin the fabric to tissue paper, if necessary, before cutting.

Seams tend to pucker with satin, although they will appear to press flat, they will pucker when the fabric cools. Loosen the thread and presser foot tension and experiment on sample seams to avoid such problems.

In pressing satin use a dry iron on the wrong side of the fabric. For touch ups on the right side, use a piece of garment fabric between the iron and the garment to prevent iron marks.

Knitted fabrics are not difficult to sew, if you follow a few basic rules.

Choose the correct weight for your pattern. Is it light enough to avoid bulk and sufficiently firm for good draping? Heavier knits will be supple and firm and hold their shape. Also consider using linings and interfacings.

Cut knits on the grain of the fabric; such fabrics are heat-set and cannot be straightened, if they are set off grain. Pin pattern pieces on the grain and use fine, sharp pins. Hold the fabric flat when pinning and cutting to avoid stretching. And don't let excess fabric hang over the edge of the table.

In sewing knits, use a very small zig-zag stitch. The seams will give with the fabric and the stitches will not snap.

If velvet or velveteen is your choice, remember to check the direction of the pile. Hold two ends of the fabric up and look down it. One end will appear darker and richer; mark that end as the top. Every pattern piece must face the top of the fabric, otherwise, the gown will have a 2-tone look.

Use the pattern layout for fabric "with nap". These fabrics can never be cut with a crosswise fold.

Velvet crushes and marks easily, so roll, rather than fold, the fabric. And since stitching and pressing can cause problems, use common sense in the choice of patterns. Steam pressing velvet takes care, and the fabric cannot be handled until thoroughly dry. If handled while damp, the nap will flatten, leaving a permanent mark.

Now, if this hasn't scared you off the idea of making your own wedding gown, then sew on. But remember, planning, patience and caution can end in a day to remember.

Bridal showers build wedding chest

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

So many things involved with "that big day" — the wedding — are hectic, nerve-racking and time-consuming to the point of exhaustion. But there are also the pleasant, relaxing aspects, too — the fringe benefits — which come with setting an altar date.

One of the nicest is the bridal shower; that time when friends and relatives gather to share the bride-elect's happiness and to see that she has help filling the empty cupboards, drawers, closets and rooms in her new home.

The bridal shower, without which a young couple would find themselves literally "starting from scratch", has taken on many new designations over the years as hostesses strive to be clever and original. Particularly when the young woman is being given more than one shower, party-planners attempt to find novel and fun ways to entertain.

The kitchen shower, once "the" big theme, has given way to more specific categories such as "pantry" where guests bring foodstuffs, spices, home-canned goods; "recipe" when each is requested to type her favorite and then bring the dish, utensil, pan, etc. in which it is to be made. Sometimes, too, there's a request for one of the ingredients — a can of corn, tin of bread crumbs, spice or herb, to further embellish the gift.

When a shower is to be one with many, many guests it almost always is labeled "miscellaneous." But the more popular trend for smaller, intimate parties allows a hostess to be imaginative and come up with such delights as a "whim and a fancy" — having gifts geared to the honoree's pastimes, hobbies, profession. Is she a houseplant buff? A lover of crewel, needlepoint, knitting? An aspiring young artist? An upcoming gourmet cook or already a fine baker? A tennis nut? An avid reader? Shopping the specialty areas of department stores or those many irresistible gift shops will produce dozens of probabilities for which to opt. The possibilities are almost endless.

Basic linen showers have grown to include sidelines such as "bathroom and bedroom" or "bath and closet" and those beautiful coordinated bath accessories will leave you yearning for some of your own. How about a variety of brushes for the nails, back, hair, clothes, toilet? Or one of those delightful gingham or calico picture frames? Check out the many super garment bags, hat boxes, show racks, padded hangers, which can do so much to unclutter a closet.

Take the bridegroom into consideration if you're contemplating a couple's shower and request either one gift for both or two smaller gifts for their individual needs. Let your imagination run rampant and you'll find yourself with dozens of fantastic combinations — a plastic bucket, scrub brush, sponge, household cleaners for her (tuck in some good rags as well; how many newlyweds have such a thing as "rags"?). Then put together a larger pail for him and toss in a chamois, sponge, car wax, hose nozzle, etc. for his outdoor uses. The "around the clock" or "hour shower" is another gimmick that's a lot of fun. Each guest is given a certain hour of coat of past years. The one-button jacket comes in granite-gray and is worn with an ascot instead of the usual bow tie. The ensemble is set off by a pearly-gray vest and striped gray trousers of alternating light and dark hues.

The Croyden, with its fitted, tailored look, differs from the traditional sack look of years gone by.

With the Croyden, the ascot is worn with a winged collar which stands up above the shirt, which in most cases, is white. This style in formal wedding attire represents a return to the traditional look made popular previously, but is interpreted in 1977 styling".

Every wedding ensemble is accented with patent leather shoes of white or brown for spring and summer, while black or brown is worn for the colder seasons.

Every wedding ensemble is accented with patent leather shoes of white or brown for spring and summer, while black or brown is worn for the colder seasons.

A new trend now coming about is the dress of the bride-to-be, who now coordinated her bridal gown with the styling of the formal wear for the groom.

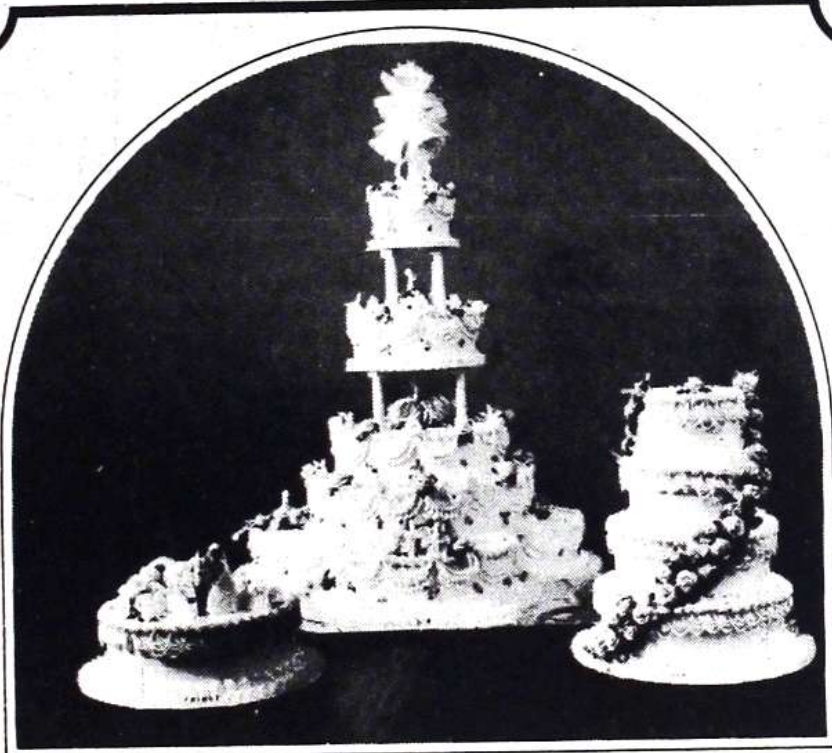

Men's wear stores not only have a complete assortment of the latest in wedding and formal wear for men, but for boys all the way down to the age of three years. Men's sizes run as high as size 56.

Cost of renting the entire wedding outfit ranges from a low of $22 to a high of $44, with shoes running from $3 to $5. The average price for formal wear rentals to be about $37.

An increasing number of prospective bridegrooms and brides are "dressing up" for second and third marriages, in sharp contrast to times past when an informal ceremony was considered sufficient.

As known for years in the business world, "clothes make the man". In today's formal weddings, it's the same story.

For weddings

White cake still is the favorite

Although change seems to be the name of the game in just about everything connected to fashions, such is not the case when it comes to wedding cakes.

In the opinion of bakeries who devote much of their baked output to cakes made for such gala occasions, white cake leads all other varieties as it has for decades.

"White cake still is the favorite for wedding cakes with most of my customers, but banana nut is a close second," one area bakery spokesman commented.

Her 33 years in the bakery business give her words a ring of conviction when she states that little has changed in the baking of wedding cakes in regard to kind of batter used. That includes the use of white icing for almost all cakes.

If any noticeable trend is evident, she said, it would have to be in the decoration of the cake. More cakes are decorated than was the custom years ago, and more artistic designs are used, she added.

Asked if she could volunteer a third choice for wedding cakes, the bakers said chocolate cake, also with white icing, was next in order of preference.

Her words were echoed by another owner of a bakery in a nearby suburb. As the new proprietor of the firm since last November, which has been in the business of baking wedding cakes almost exclusively for the last 40 years, she also attested to the popularity of white cake for weddings.

"White cake is almost always the choice with my customers who want them for weddings. Sometimes ivory insides are asked for," she explained.

Running second at her bakery is cherry nut, with banana nut in third place. Ranking behind these favorites are chocolate marble and German chocolate cakes.

Both bakery owners agree that white icing is preferred by the majority of customers, except in the case of German chocolate cake when a chocolate-based coconut frosting is used on the top and middle layers, with white icing on the sides.

The second bakery owner goes a step further in regard to the frosting decorations used now, adding that birds and other creations are used frequently instead of the traditional wedding bells to adorn the top of the wedding cake.

"Also, we are now using fresh flowers to ornament the top of many wedding cakes," she said.

All in all, it would appear that wedding cakes overall have not changed much more over the past few years than the marriage ceremony itself.

A dash here

Swirls of buttery white frosting, the traditional sugary wedding bells and a lacy heart rimmed bridal couple are all things found on wedding cakes these days. Styles are changing and some cakes even include fountains and humorous bridal couples, but at Johnson's Bakery odds on favorite are that underneath all that frosting is the traditional white cake. And Mrs. Louise Johnson ought to know, she's decorated quite a few of them. — ANP photo.

Avoid surprises. . .

Be sure to plan ahead

There is a television ad currently popular where the promoters of a well known motel chain tell you that "the best surprise is no surprise".

Undoubtedly, this slogan can also be applied to planning of "the perfect wedding". The planning of that once-in-a-lifetime event includes a lot of big arrangements, plus a lot of little details, and sorting out your timetable to get things done can head off any last-minute surprises.

Beginning your planning a year ahead of time is certainly not too soon, especially in church arrangements and reserving a hall for a wedding reception.

Naturally, the first item to be tackled is determining your wedding budget. Traditionally, the bride and her family will pay for the wedding gown, invitations and announcements, flowers for the attendants and groom, decorations for the ceremony, the reception, gifts for the bride's attendants, the wedding photographs and the wedding cake.

Usually, the groom and his family will pay for engagement and wedding rings, the marriage license, bachelor's party, rehearsal dinner, gifts for the bride, best man and usher, boutonnieres for best man, fathers and ushers, plus corsages for mothers of the couple, and the bride's bouquet, and the minister's fee.

Naturally, the responsibility for these costs may vary with different couples, but should definitely be discussed early in wedding preparations.

Once the engaged couple decided what type of wedding to have — formal or informal — the wedding date should be set.

After a date is chosen, the couple should visit their clergyman to confirm the date, and should reserve the place of the reception. Many couples find that they must change their first choice of a wedding date to accommodate availability of the church and hall. The earlier these basic arrangements are made, the surer the couple can be that the church and hall will be available.

This might be as early as a year beforehand, but at least four months ahead of time, if possible.

When reserving the hall, food arrangements for the reception can be taken care of. A photographer should be lined up, as well as musicians for the wedding service and for the reception.

The bride and groom should pick their attendants three or four months before the wedding date, and choose the outfits they will wear. At the same time, the bride's gown should be ordered, especially since as a rule gowns for bride and attendants must be ordered.

Wedding invitations, too, must be ordered early, so the bride and groom should compile their invitation list, then order invitations, as well as personal stationery, napkins and matches, if they choose.

Another important contact to make three months before the ceremony is the florist. Bouquets, corsages and boutonnieres must be picked. At about this time, mothers of the bride and groom should select their gowns for the special day.

Two months before the wedding, invitations should be addressed, ready to be sent one month before the wedding date.

Wedding rings should be picked about two months before the ceremony. Plans for the wedding trip also should be made.

It's a good idea to select the gifts for attendants and ushers at this time, too.

If the bridal couple decide to register for wedding gifts at area stores, a popular tradition in this area, those selections should be made two to three months before the wedding so gifts may be picked by friends for both the wedding and bridal showers.

The bride and groom will each need to see their doctor for an examination and medical certificate to take to the county clerk for the marriage license. In Wayne County, the license can be obtained up to one month before the wedding. Both, or at least one of the bridal couple must go in person to apply for it, then there is a 3-day waiting period. The marriage must take place within 30 days of issuance of the license.

Much of the activity during the last month before the wedding will be taken up checking on final details. Be sure to order the wedding cake, get final fittings on gowns and veils, and arrange the rehearsal dinner.

By this time, music should be chosen for the ceremony, seating arranged for the reception, and transportation to the church and reception planned by the wedding party.

The bride and her parents will be getting responses to the wedding invitations, and should keep accurate lists. By this time, gifts will be arriving, and must be stored.

In the meantime, the soon-to-be-wed couple also will be making plans to set up housekeeping, and recording gifts that arrive.

'Shower' her with spices

The "I dos" are over, reception guests have gone home, the newlyweds are back from the honeymoon and now hubby's awaiting that first meal.

How did the bride prepare for preparing it?

"It's all up to her tastes," says Ruth Beale, Cooperative Extension Service home economist. "She'll need the basic foods that everyone needs: flour, sugar, coffee, bread, salt and pepper—those general items. The rest depends on her."

Mrs. Beale has a suggestion for acquiring the necessities.

"Sometimes a gift basket of these common items is a nice bridal shower gift," she explained.

Logically, saying "I do" turns a maiden into a wife, but not necessarily a cook. Having to face the cookbook lingo of oz., tsp., pkg., pt., C., T., sq., dash, lb., stick, in., sec., min., hr., 1/2, 1/4, 1/8, one-third, is challenge enough.

But running into a word like "allspice" in a recipe doesn't mean emptying the cabinet into the pot. And "rosemary" isn't just the name of the woman who bore the Devil's child in "Rosemary's Baby".

Savory isn't what she hopes the meal will be, it's a spice.

Here are some spices and their uses, as culled from the Jackson County Bicentennial Cook Book. Some are basic, others fanciful garnishments.

They'll mean something special to the bride who doesn't have any in her spice cabinet when she opens the

Sweet dreams

If you're looking for a gift the bridal couple will enjoy and appreciate for many years — good bed pillows are the answer. The softest, most luxurious pillows in the world are those filled with down — the soft, shaftless fluffs from the breasts of ducks and geese. Pillows filled with a combination of down and feathers are firmer than down-filled ones. The more feathers in blend, the firmer the pillow will be. All-feather pillows are the firmest of the naturals. Pillows are also made of polyester or foam rubber, and these tend to be firm. Down, feather, or feather and down-filled pillows usually cost more than synthetic ones, but they will last much longer. With all the choices available, you may want to ask the bride what type of pillows she and her fiancé prefer. This way you will be assured of giving a gift that promises comfortable sleep and sweet dreams.

The bride may want to look into details of changing her name on various documents, if she intends to take her husband's name.

Final details also will include checking with the minister, caterer, photographer, florist and other principals.

The best assurance of a smooth wedding schedule is early planning, so that there are no last minute surprises.

For instance, the couple should remember the 3-day waiting period for the marriage license, the document that may be the most important part of the wedding. Without the license, there is no marriage.

Many wedding oriented businesses — florists, printers, dress shops — have available check lists that will help the bridal couple meet "deadlines" for getting things done.

Somewhat, it all does get done, and the wedding day arrives, hopefully problem free. Winter weddings may be surprised by snow, summer ones by rain, but that is something that no amount of planning can avoid.

And after all, the main event is the marriage of two people. The frills, the reception, the flowers, the guests, the elaborate outfits, are just nice extra touches to enhance the memories the newlyweds can cherish for all the years of their married life.

After all this, if the bride decides she doesn't want to cook she may need some of the spices anyway.

The Bicentennial Cook Book authors also note that chives keep aphids away from roses; castor beans keep flies and moles away from plants; mint keeps worms away from cabbage; garlic keeps rodents away from tulips and crocus bulbs; savory and red peppers chase away rodents.

the day for which her gift is to be used and, at the party, the hostess will probably proceed in a dawn to midnight sequence in handing the honored guest her gifts.

So you got 3 p.m.? A crock pot could be bubbling at that hour. Seven in the evening? Guests are coming so how about a card table cover, playing cards, coasters, poker chips? This category is really interesting since it allows for lots of ingenuity. One has to remember to use a difficult hour-of-the-day for weekends as well. So she's not home during the week to use a 1 p.m. present; she COULD be cleaning, baking or entertaining at luncheon on a Saturday.

The possibilities are endless for trying something unusual — it just takes a bit of thought and imagination. And there's no doubt that many readers could add even more suggestions which they've already employed or enjoyed as a bride-to-be in their pre-nuptial days.

Who pays what

Who's responsible for what in a wedding? The bride and groom each have a number of financial obligations—which, incidentally, balance out very well if they follow this simple guideline:

The BRIDE pays for:

- Her wedding gown, headpiece and veil;
- Her personal trousseau;
- The gifts for her attendants (the attendants purchase their own gowns);
- The bridal portrait;
- All decorations (including the floral decorations) and music for the wedding and reception;
- The attendants' bouquets;
- The wedding photographs;
- The wedding reception, including the fee for the place in which the reception is held;

- The fee for the place of the ceremony;
- The wedding cake;
- The wedding ring for the groom; and
- The bride's personal wedding gift for the groom.

The GROOM purchases:

- The engagement and wedding rings for the bride;
- The marriage license;
- The bachelor dinner, if any is given;
- Gifts for the best man and ushers;
- Contributions to the clergyman or officiating authority;
- The bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, as well as corsages for both mothers and all boutonnieres;
- The groom's personal gift to the bride;
- Attendants' ties and gloves, if the wedding is formal; and
- The wedding trip.

Ford's Better Ideas Keep Coming.

Your Ford Dealer presents his colorful spring lineup of Better Ideas for 1978.

Ideas for growing families

Ideas for every budget

Ideas for the future

Ideas for having fun

Ideas for good mileage ratings

Ideas for sporty styling

Ideas for tough truckin'

No two people have exactly the same driving needs. That's why Ford has created a lineup of Better Ideas big enough to give every American driver freedom of choice. There are family cars, sporty cars, luxury cars, high mileage cars, roomy vans and wagons. From Ford Fairmont, the best-selling new car nameplate ever introduced in America (for the first four months Oct. 1977 thru Jan. 1978) ... to Ford Fiesta, which in its first twelve months (Sept. 1976 thru Aug. 1977) became Europe's best-selling new car nameplate in history ... to Ford Trucks, the best-selling truck line in U.S. history, based on 1977 calendar year retail deliveries. So stop in at your local Ford Dealer and find the better idea that's just right for you.

More about mileage ratings. All ratings quoted are based on EPA estimates. Your actual mileage may vary depending on your vehicle's condition, optional equipment and how and where you drive.

One of your Ford Dealer's best ideas is to make car buying easier—he offers:

- Full financing on all cars and trucks.
- Complete service at over 5,400 dealers nationwide.
- The option to buy or lease any vehicle at most dealers.
- Personal test drives at your convenience.

Product Changes. Ford Division reserves the right to change specifications any time without incurring obligations.

The Futura.

Here is a car designed for the automotive future. With dynamic styling inside and out. Comfort for five passengers, yet fuel and cost efficiency for the years ahead. A car realistically priced for today. The new Ford Fairmont Futura. A dramatic combination of styling and technology for 1978... and beyond.

EPA Ratings: 33 mpg hwy., 23 mpg city (see inside front cover)
Engine: 2.3 litre OHC, manual transmission

"Finally—looks, room and high mileage numbers."

"Futura. A perfect name for it."

Fairmont Futura in Silver and Grey Metallic Tu-Tone with Russet vinyl interior.

"Frankly, the biggest surprise was Futura's sticker price."

"It's right down to earth, where we needed it.
And our Ford Dealer even handled the financing."

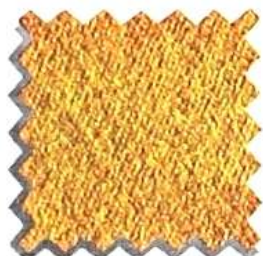

The Fairmonts.

Ford Fairmont has become the best-selling new car nameplate ever introduced in America (for the first four months Oct. 1977 thru Jan. 1978). Here's why. Fairmont has the highest mileage rating of any mid-size car... the most room for the money of any car... and the lowest sticker price of any mid-size car, based on comparison of U.S. Government's EPA index and sticker prices. Could it be the car in your family's future?

EPA Ratings: 33 mpg hwy., 23 mpg city (see inside front cover)
Engine: 2.3 litre OHC, manual transmission

"Well, Fairmont's got the highest mileage ratings in its class... the most room for the money of any car, what else do we need?"

"The low scheduled maintenance requirements are what surprised me."

The Pintos.

Since Ford Pinto's introduction there have been more Pintos sold than any other subcompact in America. The reasons for Pinto's success include . . . sporty styling, good gas mileage ratings and a low sticker price. Now Pinto has more standard features than ever offered before. Pinto is a great little idea that just keeps getting better and better.

Assembled by Ford in Germany, Ford Fiesta features the exceptional traction and solid cornering of front wheel drive, surprising interior room, easy maintenance and the highest mileage ratings offered by any American manufacturer.
